Be Clean—Avoid Disease.
Flying In Peace Times.
2 Grains of Radium
Prince and Banjo.
Quality, Not Quantity.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1927

THE secret of health is cleanliness, inside and out. Clean lungs, clean blood, clean thinking prolong life and fight disease.

Leprosy that killed thousands and was looked upon as a necessary visitation from above, was another word for filth.

In Africa a strange, destructive fever swept across the great dark continent; 60,000 were killed by it; quarantine stations were established without success.

Soap, water and disinfectant would have done the work. Disease is carried by vermin. Before asking why the natives do not free themselves of the vermin, we must remember that it isn't so long in this country since country people looked upon the absence of vermin as a sign of ill-health.

They thought the tiny children abandoned, unhealthy children. They also thought that the mosquito's bite, which actually put malaria in the blood, was a good cure for malaria.

LORD THOMSON, formerly British air minister, says any nation that wants to be prepared and safe in war should encourage peace flying. Airplanes rapidly become obsolete. But knowing how to fly, like knowing how to swim or ride, is an asset for all time. The British and other nations in Europe and Asia know it and energetically teach flying to their young men. Boys at Oxford are taught to fly, thanks to the government interest in flying.

Why doesn't the government of this country supply every college with one or more safe flying machines and good pilots and teach flying to any young man willing to learn—with his parents' consent if under 21?

At least 80 healthy American boys out of 100 would gladly learn to fly if they had the opportunity. Why doesn't the government give it to them?

"AIR TAXIS, LTD.," is a company established in England. You telephone for a plane to take you from London to Cairo, or up to your shooting place in Scotland, and the plane is ready as soon as you are. The air taxis for journeys of moderate distance will be cheaper than road taxis. Real flying is coming.

NEW YORK CITY bought two grains of radium for $140,000 to use in fighting cancer.

If you want to think of something strange and wonderful, consider the fact that two tiny grains of radium, sending out their particles of matter, with the breaking up of their atoms, bombarding the cancer with a force

ALDERMAN POCKETED FINES IS CHARGE

Alderman Patrick Cawley of the Nineteenth ward faces a charge of perjury as a result of alleged failure to turn over to the county controller fines collected from milk dealers of Penn township, who were arrested, it is said, by Cawley's constables for having in their possession bottles belonging to other firms.

A hearing in Cawley's case, scheduled for last night before Justice of the Peace Thomas E. Mallisee of Unity, was postponed to Friday night at the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph E. Smith, who represents Wilson Davidson of Penn township, the prosecutor.

80TH VETS INVADE CITY FOR REUNION

Time turned back a decade today as World War veterans from all parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio and the Virginias greeted each other with joyous shouts or voices husky with emotion as they lined up at the registration booth of the Eightieth Division reunion in Moose Temple.

From the time the booth was opened at 9 a. m., until late afternoon, a continual line of veterans marched down the aisle to get their credentials and tickets to the elaborate program of entertainment events arranged by the local committee.

Members of the reception committee waited at each railroad station, sending the veterans to Moose Temple in taxicabs and private automo-

Fliers Over Ocean

UPAVON, England, Aug. 31. — (AP.) — A 62-year-old princess, sped by priestly benediction, this afternoon was flying westward over the Atlantic ocean, in a woman's pioneer effort to reach America from Europe by air.

Squired by two veterans of British aviation, Princess Louenstein Werthein, seated in a comfortable armchair, hopped off from the Upavon airdrome early today in a huge Forker monoplane, the St. Raphael, with Ottawa, Canada, the first scheduled stop.

The Archbishop of Cardiff blessed the plane and its occupants before they took off to the misty, drippy atmosphere. The English coast was soon cleared and St. George's channel crossed to pass over Ireland, above New Ross in Wexford, continuing to Tipperary where Thurles was seen beneath, and then reaching the west coast at Galway Bay and the Atlantic.

ACCEPT OCEAN'S CHALLENGE

The ocean's silent challenge was accepted as plaudits sounded from a crowd of fisher folk who could hear the roar of the propellor as the two men and a woman sped away with a record to be made if they can combat the elements and cross the ocean from east to west.

Piloting the noble lady are Capt. Leslie Hamilton, celebrated as stunt pilot and picturesque enough to have won a nickname of "Flying Gypsy," and Col. Frederick F. Minchin, deco-

CY WILLIAMS RETURNS TO QUAKER LINEUP

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILLIES PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—Cy Williams, slugging outfielder of the Phillies, was back in the lineup when the Pirates and Phils met in the first game of a doubleheader here this afternoon. Williams had been out of the game with a sore arm.

Vic Aldridge of the Pirates opposed Frank Ulrich of the Quakers in the pitchers' box. The attendance was 4,000.

The game in detail:

FIRST INNING

PITTSBURGH—L. Waner lined to Spalding. Barnhart flied to Williams. P. Waner flied to Spalding.

PHILADELPHIA—Spalding went out, Harris to Aldridge. Sand grounded to Harris. Williams fanned.

SECOND INNING

PITTSBURGH—Wright singled to center. Traynor singled to right, Wright taking third. On Williams' wild throw Traynor took second. Grantham flied to Williams, who held both runners. Harris grounded to Friberg, who threw to the plate, but Wright was safe. Traynor took thid and Harris reached first. Gooch forced Harris, Thompson to Sand, as Traynor scored. Aldridge flied to Sand. Two runs. Two hits. One error.

PHILADELPHIA — Wrightstone singled to right. Leach forced Wrightstone, Grantham to Wright. Wilson bunted safely down the third base line. Thompson flied to L. Waner. Friberg forced Wilson, Wright to Grantham. Two hits.

THIRD INNING

PITTSBURGH—L. Waner lined to Spalding. Barnhart flied to Leach. P. Waner rolled to Thompson.

PHILADELPHIA — Ulrich fanned. Spalding fouled to Barnhart. Sand fanned.

FOURTH INNING

PITTSBURGH—Wright singled to left. Traynor sacrificed, Ulrich to Wrightstone. Grantham popped to Thompson. Friberg threw out Harris. One hit.

PHILADELPHIA — Williams grounded to Harris. Grantham threw out Wrightstone. Leach lined to P. Waner.

FIFTH INNING

PITTSBURGH—Gooch grounded to Wrightstone. Aldridge singled to left. L. Waner forced Aldridge, Ulrich to Thompson. Barnhart popped to Sand. One hit.

PHILADELPHIA—Wilson rolled to Grantham. Thompson popped to Traynor. Wright threw out Friberg.

SIXTH INNING

PITTSBURGH—P. Waner fouled to Friberg. Wright bounced to Sand. Traynor singled to left. Grantham walked. Harris fouled to Spalding. One hit.

PHILADELPHIA—Ulrich lined to Barnhart. Wright threw out Spalding. Sand beat out an infield hit. Williams was hit by a pitched ball. Wrightstone walked, filling the bases. Leach flied to Barnhart. One hit.

SEVENTH INNING

PITTSBURGH — Gooch flied to Thompson. Aldridge popped to Sand. L. Waner singled to right. Barnhart flied to Sand. One hit.

PHILADELPHIA—Wilson flied to Barnhart. Wright threw out Thompson. Wright also threw out Friberg.

EIGHTH INNING

PITTSBURGH—P. Waner popped to Sand. Wright flied to Williams. Traynor singled to right. Grantham rolled to Thompson. One hit.

PHILADELPHIA—Ulrich bounced to Wright. Spalding singled to left. Sand flied to P. Waner. Williams popped to Harris. One hit.

NINTH INNING

PITTSBURGH — Harris fouled to Friberg. Sand threw out Gooch. Sand threw out Aldridge.

PHILADELPHIA — Wrightstone doubled to left. Leach walked. Wilson sacrificed, Traynor to Harris. Thompson doubled to left, scoring Wrightsone and Leach with the tieing run. Scott batted for Friberg. He was purposely passed. Nixon ran for Scott. Ulrich fanned. Spalding forced Nixon, Wright to Grantham. Two runs. Two hits.

Woodside Ousting Sought

An eleventh hour effort to prevent the nomination of former Sheriff Robert G. Woodside as controller was started today by Controller C. C. McGovern, Pinchot appointee who is seeking to succeed himself.

The move was made when Attorney Frank C. McGirr, acting for Joseph Painter and Mrs. Lulu Mosby, who lobbied in Harrisburg for voting machines,, asked Judge George V.

Asks Senate Return Local Ballot Boxes

By International News Service Wire.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—A request that the Senate return the ballot boxes containing the votes cast in the last Pennsylvania senatorial election was made today by Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the board of county commissioners of Allegheny county.

The boxes are needed for the primary election of September 22, Armstrong advised the Senate sergeant-at-arms. He suggested that the ballots be placed in sealed mail bags pending the recount of votes.

To replace the boxes would cost $6,446.60. The government will be asked to reimburse the county for that amount if new boxes must be purchased. The request was forwarded to Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the special campaign fund investigating committee.

Fighting The War Over Again

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

THEY are here! The heroes of the glorious old Eightieth. Short, tall, slim, stout, laughing, saddened, bright-eyed, healthy, haunted-eyed and sightless. How hard it is to look around Moose Temple and feel that once they were machine gun "fodder." Jack and Bill and Sarg, and Charlie—rich man, poor man—all united in the big job of getting together again.

There is Lieut. Frank S. Schoble, Jr., of Philadelphia. They call him one of their biggest heroes. Sandy, haired, blue sightless eyes, pathetic with a cane—he came all the way alone. The lieutenant

Faces Tax Collector

PHYLLIS HAVER

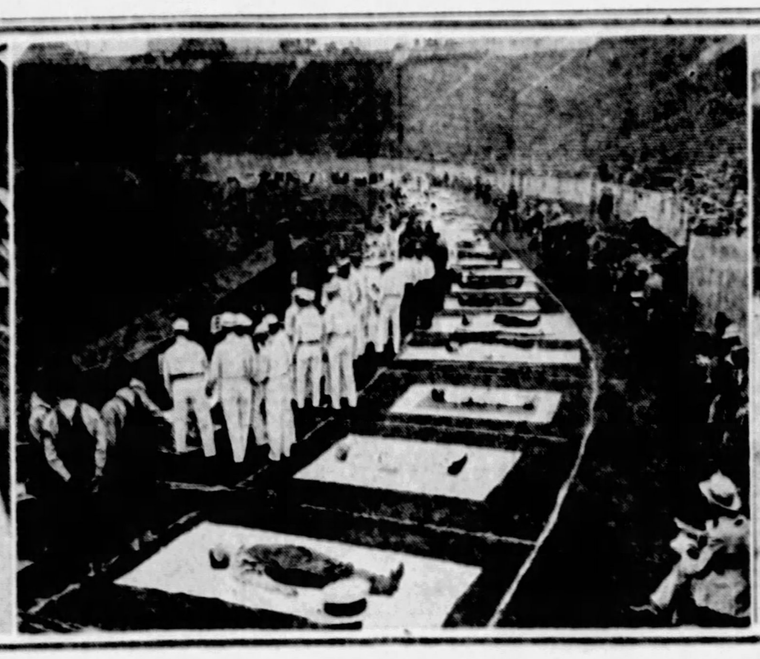
The alluring young lady of bathing beauty fame may expect a visit from a stern-faced tax collector in no time at all, if reports from Los Angeles are true. Phyllis has been informed that she owes the government $95.61 in income tax and a lien for that amount has been filed against her.

GRAY-HAIRED GUNMAN ROBS BANK OF $3,500

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 31.—A gray-haired bandit held up the Metairie bank in Metairie Ridge, near here, at the point of a shotgun and fled with $3,500 in cash. The teller and a bookkeeper were in the bank. Forcing the teller to open the vault the bandit scooped up cash, placed it in a satchel, walked out to his car and drove away. A small boy who entered while the robber was looting the vault was chased out with a menacing flourish of the gun.

80TH VETERANS INVADE CITY FOR REUNION

MINE RESCUE TEAMS :-: VIE FOR HONORS :-: AT MEET HERE



CLOSE WORK

Judges examining the work of a first-aid team in the competition at the Pitt Stadium yesterday, in which 47 teams took part. The patient was presumed to have been the victim of a serious industrial accident. He was promptly resuscitated.

CHEATING "LIVE" WIRES

All the participating teams engaged simultaneously in demonstrating their skill in reviving victims of electrical shock. A reviewing board of three physicians watched each team's work and three chief judges will pass on their work for the general award of prizes to be announced Thursday night. The Veterans of Foreign Wars Band played as the meet went on.

SPEED COUNTS

Once the victim is revived speed becomes the all-important thing. Speed in getting the patient to an ambulance and to warmth and medical aid is demonstrated here. The teams are taught to take all precautions to prevent a patient succumbing to exposure.

NEW TRIAL MOTIONS DENIED

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson yesterday denied the motion for a new trial of five members of the Homestead borough council and four other men who were found guilty in a trial last May in which they were charged with conspiring to violate the national prohibition law. Nine other defendants were either found not guilty by the jury or by orders of the court.

The convicted Homestead borough officials were Eward Klein, president of the council, and Councilmen George McLaughlin, Samuel T. Horgan, John H. Richards and James L. Oates. The other four were Joseph Franks, Samuel Stein, William Bonifacio and Emanuel McPherson. The case was prosecuted by Assistant United States District Attorney J. A. Richardson.

FIGHTING THE WAR OVER commanded a company in the 318 Infantry.

"THE LAST I SAW"

"My last memory is going over the top," he tells you. Smoke and guns spitting fire and my comrades falling around me—that is the last I saw."

Then there is Howard H. Wells, of Petersburg, Va. He came alone and laughs about people on the Pullman, not knowing he couldn't see until he dropped his cane and groped for it. When he tells, laughing as though it were rather a good joke on folks, that in his cigar stand down in the Petersburg Hotel he counts out change to the penny and fools them into not knowing he can't see—somehow you want to reach out and touch him. He goes to your heart so.

But you move to the other side of the Temple and there is the Fighting Parson, leader of Company K, Three Hundred and Nineteenth Infantry, telling how his church sent him away and told him not to dare come back a bachelor, and he hasn't "hooked up" yet. He is the Rev. T. W. Hooper, of Culpepper, Va., who got a two-year leave of absence from his church and went over. He makes this perfectly clear in no uncertain terms:

"I wasn't a chaplain. I didn't dare get very mad but I got mad enough to see red—a little bit. The Germans never could understand why us Yanks went in grinning instead of cussing anyway."

And there is Jerry J. Madden, a "top kick" in Company A, Three Hundred and Twentieth, who laughs about the one lone "Y" girl who came in after they hadn't had anything but "Frogs" to talk to for a month—and the "poor kid darn near got talked to death."

John Vachetta and Dave Drexler, local boys from the Three Hundred and Fifteenth Artillery Headquarters Company, got together on an old crow picking they have planned a long time. And John wanted to know how come:

"Going over on the boat Dave had a pickle and he wouldn't let me have it. He told me to go on and die without him helping out. Gosh, that pickle sure looked great to me. I was only a LITTLE bit seasick."

George J. Kiler, in charge of the registration, sits there legless—grinning and shaking hands. You'd never know he has the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix De Guerre because he was a particularly brilliant hero until one of his buddies came up to tell you. He was shot through both knees at Nantillois.

FLOWERS AFTER MUD

Thomas J. Beck and H. A. McClaren, of Company F, Three Hundred and Eighteenth Infantry, blew in from Alexandria, Va. McClaren, so he says, is "sort of a nut on picking up souvenirs." He has a rare collection of original orders and photographs from all over the section where the boys fought. He is an engineer now on the B. F. M. R. Mr. Beck smiles when he tells his business—flowers. He says:

"I just kinda made up my mind after all the mud and dirt and horror I'd go in for something pretty."

William Berghammer, of Company A, Three Hundred and Fifteenth Machine Gun, saw one of Mr. McClaren's many pictures and grinned:

"See those horses lying dead there? Well, Gen. Brett passed in his side car just about two minutes before they were blown up. It was about half a mile from the lines, I guess. I near fainted."

And Vachetta pointed to some wires lying by the side of the road:

"By golly, you're right. I laid those wires!"

It is going to be a great week. And what stories they could tell—if they just would. But real soldiers don't talk much to outside folks about their hero affairs, somehow.

tiles, while Boy Scouts were stationed at every highway leading into the city directing motoring veterans to the headquarters of the reunion.

At noon more than 500 had registered and had been assigned living quarters during the period of the reunion, which ends Sunday with memorial services.

Beside the registration booth sat Gold Star mothers of Pittsburgh and members of the association auxiliary ready to aid the veterans and to take in charge the wives brought by many of them.

MANY DUE TONIGHT

There were veterans who came in smiling and looking down the line of those already registered and waiting. . . . There were those who could not see. . . . In particular Lieut. Frank Schoble, Philadelphia, who lost his sight leading his platoon over the top at Nantillois in the drive which scattered the Germans from the hilltops in the Meuse-Argonne. . . . Another was Howard G. Wells, Petersburg, Va., a bugler in the Three Hundred and Eighteenth Infantry, whose clarion call to arms continued . . . after a bursting shell had forever shut out the light of day.

Capt. Carlo D. Cella, president of the Eightieth Veterans' Association, arrived from New York early this morning, closely preceding Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett, who spent last night in Johnstown as the banquet guest of the Three Hundred and Fifth Engineers, who come en masse tonight. Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, commander of the Eightieth, is also expected tonight.

Today was devoted mainly to registration and assignment of veterans to living quarters, with the first business session in Moose Temple auditorium at 8 p. m. Mayor Charles H. Kline, T. P. Gaylord, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and various officials of veteran organizations will deliver addresses of welcome, with Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, division commander during the war, and Capt. Carlo D. Cella, president of the Eightieth Veterans' Association, responding.

BLIND VETERANS ARRIVE.

Nearly 1,000 delegates had been registered at the Moose Temple headquarters before noon. Reception committees are stationed at all railroad stations, and are sending the delegates to headquarters in taxicabs. Boy Scouts are stationed at all of the main highways to direct out-of-town men coming in machines.

Among the early arrivals today was Howard G. Wells, vice president of the association, of Petersburg, Va. He was blinded in France. Shortly afterwards another blind veteran, Lieut. Frank Schoble, of Philadelphia, arrived. He is honorary life president of the association.

Lieut. Carlo D. Cella, president of the association, of New York, arrived at 10:30 o'clock.

Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett is expected at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. He stopped in Johnstown last night to attend the convention of the Three Hundred and Fifth Engineer Regiment of the division.

As fast as the veterans were registered today automobile busses waited in front of the temple to carry them for a sightseeing tour through Liberty and Armstrong tunnels, out through the art center adjoining Schenley Park and back down the Boulevard of the Allies. This trip will be repeated as often as the veterans like. At 1 p. m. a combined luncheon of the officers and members of the executive committee was scheduled in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

At 6 p. m. various units will hold individual dinners and reunions, followed by the general assembly in the Moose auditorium at 8 p. m. The business session to follow the "welcome" meeting will last for only a few minutes to announce committee appointments. A dance in the temple roof garden will end today's program. Tomorrow's program includes committee and unit individual meetings with a visit through the H. J. Heinz Company plant at noon, followed by a boat ride down the Ohio River at 2:30.

At 7 p. m. tomorrow the official banquet of the Eightieth will be held in the English room of the Fort Pitt Hotel.

MAN DROWNS HIMSELF AFTER GIVING WARNING

After telling the Point Park caretaker that he was going to drown himself, Ferdinand Schmidt, 56, Keystone Hotel, yesterday jumped into the Allegheny river. His body was recovered later and taken to the county morgue.

Today's Program Of Eightieth Reunion

9 A. M.—Registration booth opens Moose Temple, 625 Penn avenue.

10:30 A. M.—Sight-seeing bus trip through Armstrong and Liberty tunnels, Boulevard of Allies and Baum boulevard.

1 P. M.—Luncheon of officers and executive council, Fort Pitt Hotel.

2:30 P. M.—Sight-seeing trips to all sections of city.

6 P. M.—Individual unit dinners and reunions.

8 P. M.—First business session to receive welcome from city in Moose Temple auditorium.

the Peter Thomas E. Mallisee of Unity, was postponed to Friday night at the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Ralph E. Smith, who represents Wilson Davidson of Penn township, the prosecutor. Davidson, a former milk dealer, is said to be acting in behalf of two dozen small milk dealers of the township.

Davidson avers that constables from Cawley's office collected fines in various sums, but that Cawley in filing his quarterly return to the county controller made no mention of the sums so collected.

According to Justice of the Peace Mallisee, a warrant was served on Alderman Cawley last week, but he was not compelled to give bond, his voluntary agreement to appear when wanted being accepted.

WOODSIDE OUSTING

Moore to strike Woodside's name from the ballot.

The petition to strike off the name of McGovern's only opponent is based upon the law of 1895, which reads in part that a sheriff shall be ineligible to the office of controller for two years.

Woodside officially left the office of sheriff of Allegheny county on January 4, 1926. If nominated and elected, he will not assume office until several days more than two years after that date.

The law contains nothing that prohibits him from running for office or receiving the nomination and many court decisions have been handed down on similar cases, the latest ruling being in connection with the Labor Party judicial candidaates in Allegheny county, most of whom are not eligible to serve as judges but all of whom, according to the state election bureau, are able to become candidates not only in the primary but in the general election.

September 6 was fixed as the date of the hearing on McGirr's petition.

FLIES OVER OCEAN

rated for gallant feats in martial and commercial flying.

Clad in royal purple, built along modish lines, the princess expects to show the western world what she thinks women should wear when they hop over the ocean in airplanes. The first woman to set out for an air jaunt over the broad spaces of the Atlantic dressed the part. She sailed away wearing leather knee breeches of purple with jacket to match, a black crush hat, black silk stockings and high heeled, fur lined boots.

NO STRANGER TO AIR

The 42-year-old princess is no stranger to the air and aircraft. She has been flying for 13 years, getting her first overhead thrill from an air journey in 1914.

The plane was sent on its way with the blessing of the Roman Catholic church, of which Princess Lowenstein Wertheim is a devout member. The two pilots and their passenger grouped themselves under the spreading wings of the great bird, St. Letterheads for the registration Cardiff approached they fell to their knees. The priest with upraised hands called Heaven's blessings upon the hazardous undertaking and sprinkled holy water on the ship.

The princess kissed the archbishop's ring, gathered her baggage, two brief cases, a small wicker basket of food and two hat boxes, and climbed into her seat, a cane armchair, more at home in a tea garden than an airplane.

The great adventure was on.

GOAL UNCERTAIN

It is not certain whether the plane (if it negotiates the transocean leg of the voyage successfully) will land at Ottawa or continue on to London, Ontario, for the $25,000 prize offered for the first non-stop flight from England to London, Ontario.

The distance of the flight is roughly 3,200 miles.

This is the third westward trans-Atlantic flight ever attempted. The first by Nungesser and Coli came to grief and the two French airmen were never found. The second, which was attempted by two German junkers plains, ended in a failure when storms compelled the pilots of both airplanes to turn back.

of speed unknown to any cannon or dynamite, can conquer the most dreadful disease and continue the bombardment for centuries after all the living of today shall have been dead.

NOW that New York buys radium to fight cancer, it would be a good idea for that city and other cities to imitate Berlin and cities in Britain that establish great actinic ray establishments to fight various diseases in children.

In these establishments the ultra-violet rays, manufactured artificially, containing the power of the sun's rays, are applied to the bodies of diseased or badly developed children and restore health. One single establishment just completed in London can treat 2,000 children a day.

The richest country in the world ought to be able to afford that.

THE Prince of Wales, when he visited a friend at Oxford before his Canadian trip, entered by accident the room of extremely radical young students of Socialistic convictions. The leader of the group was a man 33 years old, who had worked in a nail factory as a child of 8, and had gradually earned the money to get a university education.

Maj. Eney, who relates the story, says that the Prince of Wales, recognizing his surroundings, picked up a banjo and began to sing an ultra-radical song popular among young British Socialists.

The young radicals cheered him, drank his health, and that passed off peacefully. Modern British royalty is wiser than the French kings. Louis XVI. appeared on the balcony of his palace wearing the tricolor cockade in his hat to please the mob. But it was too late; hat and head came off.

A LEARNED professor, Thompson, says the birth rate is very important, "because the dominant race in 100 years will be the one that now has the largest birth rate."

Not necessarily. There are 300,000,000 Asiatics in India, and the dominant race there is the British race represented by 100,000 Britishers, holding 300,000,000 quarreling Hindus and Mohammedans under their thumbs.

And the real ruling power is some one Britisher thousands of miles away on a foggy island.

Quality counts also, good Prof. Thompson. One first-class baby, well brought up, preferably, of course, three or four, are better than a dozen with only 50 per cent of vitality.

CRASHES IN FOG KILL TWO

Two men were killed by trains and five persons were injured when an auto truck plunged down a 100-foot cliff in Bellevue early this morning, due to heavy fog which blanketed the city and its environs for several hours after daybreak.

Operation of street cars and other vehicles was hampered, and minor auto smashups were reported. Trains were delayed somewhat by the fog.

The truck was being driven in Roosevelt street, Bellevue, when the driver failed to make a sharp turn and the machine plunged over the curb and crashed through the thick underbrush on the hillside overlooking South Fremont avenue, landing in the middle of the roadway a mass of twisted wreckage.

The victims were taken to the Suburban Hospital, Bellevue, four of them seriously hurt. They are: Thomas Collins, 348 Sulamon street; Samuel and John Griffith, 1511 Brighton road, and Peter Dunlap, Mendota street. James O'Neill, of 412 Taylor street, was injured slightly and was taken home.

On the westbound freight tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad west of Creighton station, Alec Sidorak, 32, coal miner, of Creighton, was struck by a freight train, suffering injuries which caused his death in a physician's office early today. It is believed he failed to see the train because of thick fog.

J. C. McKenzie, of Burgettstown, a patient at the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane at Dixmont, was injured fatally early this morning, when after escaping from the hospital and blinded by fog he ran in front of a train at Emsworth. According to attendants at Dixmont, McKenzie was injured while being hunted a short time after he escaped. He was taken to the Suburban General hospital where he died this afternoon.

Charles Miller, 14, of 325 Mayflower street, riding a bicycle, was struck by a machine driven by F. T. Bisbon, of the William Penn hotel. Bisbon was arrested. Nolan Smith, 11, a Negro, of 7424 Hermitage street, roller skating, was hurt when he ran into the car driven by W. C. Hoffman, of 515 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg.

Ezeni Gusman, 25, of 414 Thirty-fifth street, McKeesport, had not regained consciousness in the McKeesport Hospital this morning following a fracture of the skull suffered late yesterday in an automobile accident. Edith Burns, 6, of 2412 Collins avenue, McKeesport, was in the same hospital, suffering from a fracture of the skull received when she was struck by an automobile.

Other auto victims in hospitals are: Tony Gievengo, 2, 1506 Denver avenue, condition serious; Clara Roxburg, 6, 1939 Sedgwick street, condition critical; Peter Mohwich, 14, 231 Naylor street, condition critical, all in St. John's General Hospital; Miss Ada Glancy, 25, 53 Barby way, condition serious, Mercy Hospital.

AMERICAN LEAPS TO HIS DEATH OFF LINER'S DECK

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Oscar Petty, 32, who was returning to America from Paris with his sister, Mrs. S. A. Boles, of Lexington, Ky., committed suicide by jumping from the deck of the French liner Paris, officials of the line announced today.

Petty had been studying at the Sorbonne in Paris for the last two years, and was returning to America to join the faculty of Columbia University.

BOMB HOME OF KINLOCH MINER

PARNASSUS, Pa., Aug. 31.—A dynamite bomb exploded under the back porch of the frame cottage occupied by John Parnell, non-union miner employed at the Kinloch mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company, partly wrecked the structure today. Parnell, his wife and four children escaped injury. The porch was blown to splinters and the side of the house damaged.

SHAKEUP RUMORS DENIED ON PENNINGTON'S RETURN

Administrator John D. Pennington upon his return today from Washington, where for the past week he has been in conference with officials of the Prohibition Department, declared that no important changes were anticipated in the personnel of the division under his jurisdiction, setting at rest many rumors recently circulated that changes would be made.

EVERGREEN ROAD MAY BECOME BABCOCK BLVD.

Petitions were received from Keown station residents today to change the name of the Evergreen road to the E. V. Babcock boulevard. The county commissioners authorized County Solicitor Heber W. Dithrich to draw up the necessary papers for the change.

BOYS FLY AIRPLANE MODELS :-: IN FINAL CONTEST :-: AT SCHENLEY OVAL

HE'S TAKING OFF

So he is—this young Paul Yohe, who came all the way from Parnassus, Pa., to fly his model in the final contest of the National Aircraft Model Contest. He won a medal, after competing in the distance test.

A STRANGE INVENTION

The distinctive feature about this model plane—it will also be exhibited next Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the City-County Building foyer—is an invention of Alfred Kremer, who made it. It has special wings to save it from a tail spin.

TO THE VICTOR

Mrs. James J. Wagner, whose big interest in life is aviation, gave a gold medal. The victor was Ray Reismyer, whose plane stayed in the air 44¾ seconds, the duration record of the day.

SAILED 592 FEET

Charles Reith, Troy Hill, won first place for distance, his plane going 592 feet, the best mark made in the test in Schenley Oval, conducted by the Bureau of Recreation and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

JUDGES—ALL AVIATORS

These aviators, James J. Wagner of Mayer Field, D. Barr Peat, manager of Bettis Field; Col. Harry Fry of the Chamber of Commerce and Raymond Marlier, president of the Pittsburgh Aero Club, dished out the medals. They were snapped watching a model flying.

RELEASE THEFT SUSPECTS

John Longo, 18, 127 Carver street; Joseph Testa, 19, 615 Collins avenue; Michael Abile, 19, 508 McDonald street; Anthony Charmello, 20, 26 Mayflower street, and Albert Bruno, 21, 7726 Lemington avenue, were arrested early today while riding in an automobile answering the description of the car seen leaving the Modern Cleaning and Tailoring Shop, 6365 Penn avenue, with $400 in loot yesterday morning. They were discharged in Morals Court this morning.

MATCH FIRES CLOTHING, M'KEESPORT GIRL IS DEAD

Carolyne Virginia Thompason, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Thompason, of 1708 Grandview avenue, McKeesport, died in the McKeesport Hospital yesterday from burns suffered Monday when her clothing was ignited by a lighted match tossed by one of a group of other children.

REOPEN INCLINE, CLOSED BY VIADUCT FIRE, TODAY

The Castle Shannon incline plane, closed because of the Mt. Washington roadway bridge fire Saturday, reopens at 5 o'clock today, the Pittsburgh Railways announced.

POSTMISTRESS ARRESTED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 31.—Miss Martha W. Carter, postmistress at Clarksville, Greene county, was arrested today charged with embezzling $1,500 from the postoffice department. She was released on $2,000 by the United States commissioner for hearing September 8.

Sun-Tele To Publish Wilson's Letters

Woodrow Wilson's private, unpublished letters and papers—"The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" by Ray Stannard Baker—have been purchased by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and will be published exclusively by this paper.

The most important work of history and biography in our generation will begin September 25, and its publication will continue daily and Sunday for 42 days.

Ever since Mrs. Woodrow Wilson announced two years ago that she had committed to Mr. Baker the task of assembling in biographical form the letters and memoirs of the late President, spirited competition has gone on among publishing houses and newspapers for the privilege of publishing this intimate story of the life of the great war President.

The contract for bringing out the work, which will be published in four annual parts, each consisting of two volumes, was signed early this year by Mr. Baker with Doubleday, Page & Co. Despite a widespread demand for publication rights the Hearst papers were successful in getting them.

More than 200,000 letters written by Wilson throughout his lifetime were turned over to Mr. Baker, including those of the most revealing character, to members of his family and to close and beloved friends. A staff of trained assistants was engaged to assemble and classify the material, and it was found necessary to organize a catalogue of more than 40,000 cards with which to index the letters and other data and make them readily accessible to the biographer.

HISTORY REVEALED.

Unwritten and unsuspected history will be revealed in the biography of the man who for eight years reigned in the White House, and whose marvelous gifts of expression dominated the world in the last two years of the war.

Sidelights of political strategy, secrets of the Peace Conference and a close-up of Wilson the man as well as Wilson the President, and statesman will be illuminated by a wealth of personal anecdote and story.

A gay Woodrow Wilson will stand out beside Wilson the deep student of history and human affairs. A friendly, home-loving Woodrow Wilson will be revealed side by side with the scholar, the diplomat, the philosopher, the sage of Princeton and the master of the White House.

His letters show how little he cared what the world thought or said about him, and yet how intensely anxious he was at all times to sound the public mind and act as he believed the people who had put him in office expected him to act.

Those who did not hold with his views, those who criticized and condemned him, will find as much interesting material in the "Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" as will his most devoted followers and admirers.

LETTER TO FIANCEE.

The first two volumes will tell the story of Wilson from boyhood to his withdrawal from Princeton University to enter politics as candidate for Governor of New Jersey. It is a real self-revelation of his youth and college days, through letters to family, fiancee and friends. As small boy the future peace advocate played at naval war games. In college, while always practicing oratory in the woods or vacant pulpits, and studying to the limit of frail health and bad eyes, he was known to his intimates as a mimic and jig dancer.

Probably the most remarkable letter in the volume is the one written to his fiancee in laying his first book as a tribute at her feet. This book, "Congressional Government," completed at Johns Hopkins, caused four or five professorships to be offered to Wilson. At every college he attended (Virginia, Princeton, Johns Hopkins), he was known as an upsetter of constitutions, almost the first thing he would do on entering a college was to discover that something was wrong with the fundamental law of the student literary society which he joined, and then there would be a great rebellion, led by Wilson, to reform the organization.

FASCINATING NARRATIVE

An illuminating part of the text concerns his futile effort to practice law; after a year he decided that he could never be a mixer, that he didn't like the crowd, whereupon he decided to go to Johns Hopkins and give up law forever. At this time he wrote to his father an extraordinary letter outlining his future. He said in effect that he would not, could not, get into politics by the usual channels of the law, but that he would become a teacher and scholar, and that in later life, if possible, he might get into the political arena from that angle. When he wrote this he was not much over 23 years old.

The whole series to appear in the Hearst newspapers is a fascinating narrative about a personality that the public hardly knows at all.

REDFERN NOTES DROPPED OVER CARIBBEAN

KINGSTON, JAMAICA, Aug. 31.—What appeared to be proof that Paul Redfern, Georgie-to-Brazil flier, was still on his lonely way 24 hours after leaving Brunswick, Ga., last Thursday, was supplied here today in the log of the S. S. Christian Krohg, a Norwegian vessel. The log said that Redfern's plane was sighted between 3 and 3:40 p. m., Friday in the Caribbean about 1,675 miles from Brunswick.

The log was as follows:

Under way from Trinidad to Jamaica on August 6 (last Friday) in North latitude 12.3; West longitude 60.33; wind fresh northeast, sea choppy. At 3 p. m., airplane observed coming west; then passing over ship.

The plane was green with yellow wings. On top of the wing was painted NX 173. On the side and forward in white letters was "Port New Brunswick," according to the letters "New Brunswick Brazil," and on the after end "U. S. A. NX 173."

(Redfern's plane was green and gold. It carried the letters NX 173 on both sides of the tail and wing, and "Brunswick to Brazil"—not New Brunswick—on the fuselage, with U. S. A., under it).

Shortly afterwards the plane came back and dropped a small, round carton on the water.

The ship's engine was stopped and reversed, and a lifebuoy was thrown overboard to mark the place of the carton.

A port lifeboat was made ready and manned. The ship was brought round and waried close up to the carton and the lifeboat launched to pick it up.

Meantime the airplane came back and dropped another carton. Both cartons were picked up by the lifeboat and brought aboard.

(continued more. The first one read: "Put your ship to nearest land. Put something on deck to indicate mileage." The second one read: "Point the ship to nearest land. For each hundred miles." (The two blanks in the second not indicate two undecipherable words.)

The ship's position was pointed toward the nearest land, which was Laguira, Venezuela.

The airplane came back again and dropped another carton. This time our ship was maneuvered closer to the carton and one of the ship crew, with a line around his waist, jumped into the sea, picked up the carton, and swam back to the ship with it.

The note in this one read: "Point ship to nearest land and wave flag or handkerchief once for every hundred miles." It was impossible to read the signature.

The ship was again brought to course and by persisting in Laguira sound when the plane flew close to her ship a flag was waved twice and the wiggle smoked twice.

The distance to land was 165 miles.

The signaling to the plane was repeated three times as the plane circled around us.

After this the plane took up the course and disappeared in the direction pointed out. At 3:40 p. m. the plane was out of sight.

WOMAN DENIES DIVORCE SUIT CHARGES

Denying her husband's divorce charges of cruel and barbarous treatment, Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin, of 216 Shady avenue, is preparing to oppose her husband's suit here by filing charges of desertion and non-support, alleging that he left her without cause.

The husband, Newton McLaughlin, whose address is given in the divorce papers as 727 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, but who is said to be in Michigan at present, left his wife after attending church with her last April 24, Mrs. McLaughlin alleges. She says he told her he was going for a walk and she asked him to come back early, as she was preparing dinner. She says she never heard anything more of him after that and his relatives refused to divulge his whereabouts.

APPROVAL GIVEN COUNTY BILLS

Evidence that the public audit instituted by County Controller Charles C. McGovern has instilled caution in the County Commissioners was seen today when the Commissioners refused payment on a number of final estimates until Gilbert C. Coonan, their statistician, appeared and said there was sufficient money in the various funds to make payment. The estimates were then approved.

A final estimate from M. O'Herron Company for paving the sub-structure and approaches to the Point Bridge was $10,005.41. Dunn & Ryan submitted a final estimate of $6,546.65 for the repaving of Carson street.

CHECK NEW CLUE TO JAWORSKI

Police at Wichita, Kan., have mailed to Acting Chief of County Detectives Harry Cochran photographs and finger-prints of two bandits shot there Monday, and of one who killed himself when cornered, to determine if the trio may be Paul Jaworski and Jack Vashinder, escaped murder convicts, and the unidentified gunman who led the two to freedom from the county jail here 12 days ago.

THREE ARRESTED IN DRY RAIDS

Prohibition agents last night arrested W. S. Lutz, proprietor of a stag hotel and restaurant, Watson and Van Braam streets, Max Butler, 105 Larimer avenue and James Dangel, 506 East Diamond street, charged with violating the prohibition laws; the former two as a result of raids in which large quantities of liquor and contraband materials were seized, and Dangel while driving an automobile in Madison avenue containing moonshine. All were released under $1,000 bond for a hearing.

SNAKE WITH 12 RATTLES KILLED IN FOREST COUNTY

TIONESTA, Pa., Aug. 31.—Farm Agent W. Irvin Galt and Heil Kunselman, of Forest county, killed a rattlesnake 50 inches long, with 12 rattles and a button, a record for this year.

COUNTY WARNS PRINTER

The county commissioners today ruled that unless H. H. McKeown fulfills his contract to print 5,000 letterheads for the registration board for $50, he shall be forever barred from submitting bids to the county. McKeown notified the commissioners that he could not do the work for the amount specified and asked that the contract be awarded the next lowest bidder.

The commissioners voted to have the road maintenance department patch the Brownsville road in Brentwood borough.

THORNBURG CAR ROUTE IS CHANGED DURING REPAIRS

Owing to track reconstruction work, which started this morning, the Thornburg route of the Pittsburgh Railways Company will terminate at Dinsmore and Steuben streets until the work is completed, it was announced by officials of the company. Passengers will be given transfers at Dinsmore and Steuben streets and service will be continued at Noble and Dinsmore streets.

TEACHERS HEAR SPECIALISTS SCORED

Specialists without perspective and specialization without breadth of knowledge are not in harmony with the theory of instruction in the educational institutions of the country, was the keynote of an address at today's session of the Allegheny County Teachers' Institute.

Dr. J. W. White of the University of Pittsburgh, speaking at the third day's session of the institute in Memorial Hall, turned thumbs down on specialists and specialization in a manner that evoked a cheer from the 2,400 teachers in his audience.

In pointing out the dangers of the lack of perspective, especially in teaching, Dr. White spoke in serious mien. He declared that the teacher who centered her interest in psychology and disregarded everything else in the curriculum, or who knew only mathematics and had no knowledge of history or philosophy, could not expect to be an efficient instructor.

Dr. Earl Barnes of New Hartford, Conn., spoke on "Our Need for Social Inventions." Mrs. Anna C. Green, assistant state director of vocational education, and Miss I. Jewell Rimpson, assistant state superintendent of the Maryland schools, discussed technical teaching subjects.

Princess' Last Minute Hop Characteristic

NEW YORK, Aug. 31. — (INS.)—In taking off without advance notice on a flight to America, Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, according to friends here, is engaging in a characteristic stunt.

In brief, the princess, despite her years, still has a mind of her own. At the last possible moment she displaced Capt. Robert J. McIntosh, an experienced pilot of British Airways, Ltd., who, it has been understood for months, would essay the hazardous journey with Capt. Hamilton and Col. Minchin.

Moreover, the princess has not gone merely as a spectator. Though the two men with her in the machine are veteran aviators, they have no monopoly on the controls. The princess has had a pilot's license for many years, and those here who know her say she is doing her share of the piloting on this trip.

Back in 1922, at an age when most women of her years were content to appease their desire for motion in rocking chairs, she astonished Europe by suddenly entering the all-round-Britain aerial classic in her own De Haviland machine just as the field was taking off. She didn't win, but the others knew she was in the contest.

While in London one afternoon her secretary reminded her of a social engagement in Paris. She got Gresham-White on the phone and flew with him from Dover to Calais. This trip marked the countess as the first aerial taxi passenger in history.

The princess is a daughter of the late Earl of Roxborough. Her husband, Prince Ludwig Karl Zu Lowenstein-Wertheim, a Bohemian prince, disappeared mysteriously soon after their marriage. He was killed, it was learned some years afterward, in the Filipino insurrection in 1899.

"I am looking forward to this trip," she said. "I am confident of my pilot and my machine. I am proud to be the first woman passenger to attempt crossing the Atlantic Ocean. I am excited, of course, but I am not nervous. Could I be anything else? It is a great adventure."

Before entering the machine, the princess fell on her knees before the archbishop and received a final benediction.

Minchin is piloting the plane. Hamilton holds the post of navigator.

Capt. Hamilton and Col. Minchin hope to arrive on the American continent tomorrow morning. They had first expected to fly to New York, but an eleventh-hour change in plans caused them to decide to head for Ottawa.

SOMERSET BOY, HIT BY AUTO, IN HOSPITAL

SOMERSET, Pa., Aug. 31.—Struck by an automobile last night on the Somerset-Berlin highway, William Musser, 11, of Somerset, is in the Community Hospital in a serious condition. His skull is fractured.

48 NEW CHARGES CONFRONT MINERS

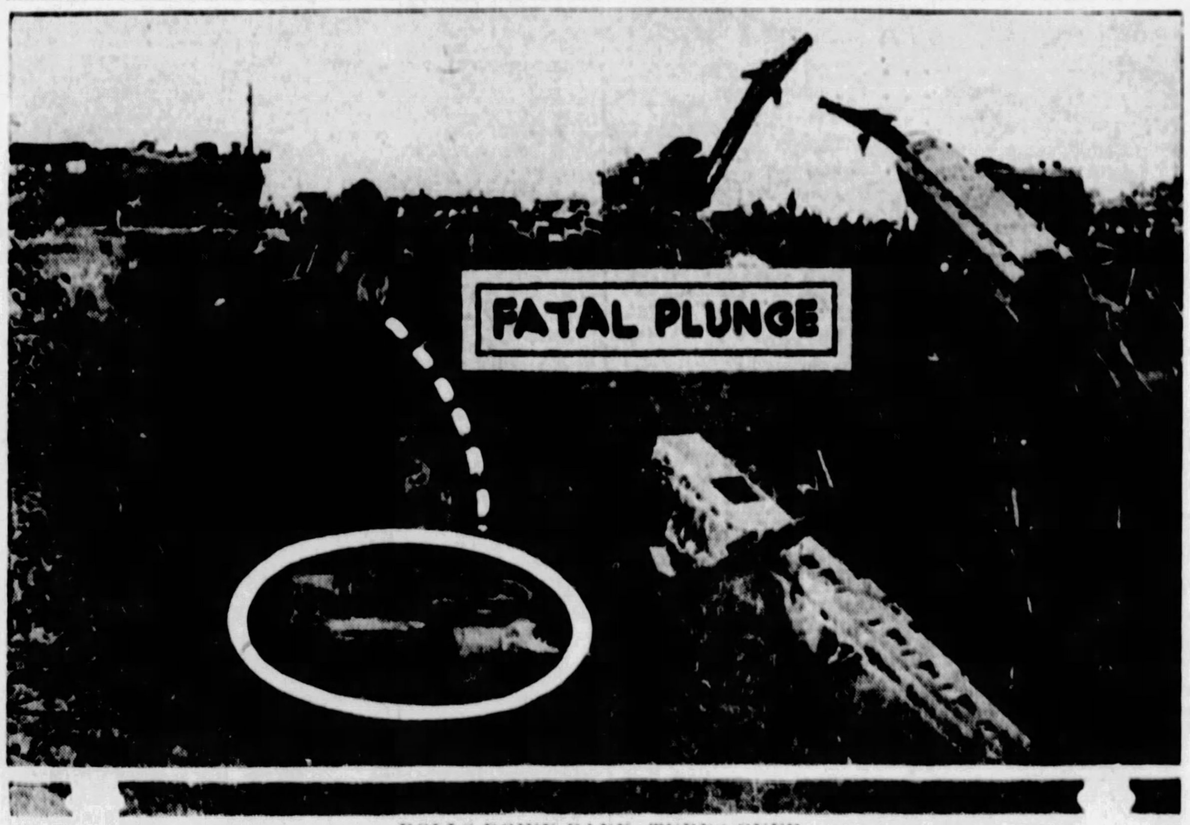
Forty-eight additional affidavits charging sabotage, dynamiting, excessive picketing and acts of violence, were filed in Federal Court today in the injunction proceedings and damage suit brought by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation against the miners' union. Many of these affidavits are the outgrowth of an announcement from the miners' union that the fight would not only be carried out against the Terminal corporation, but against all open shops.

Among the new affidavits are the McClane Mining Company, Ellsworth Collieries, Vesta Coal Company, Export Coal Company, Chartiers Creek Coal Company, Berths Consumers Coal Company, Valley Camp Coal Company, Union Collieries Company, Consumers Coal Mining Company, Salkeld Coal Company and Pittsburgh Coal Company. The damage to mining property, as shown by the affidavits, runs into enormous figures.

The affidavits charge that because of excessive demands of the union during the past few years, Western Pennsylvania has lost a large part of its coal trade in the lake ports, in the Northwest and in the East.

The union attorneys have until next Tuesday to file the union's affidavits. The preliminary injunction hearing is set for Friday, September 9, in Federal Court.

WHERE LIMITED'S ENGINE ENDED FATAL HURDLE



ROLLS DOWN BANK, TURNS OVER

The first locomotive of the Broadway Limited, crack Pennsylvania Railroad night train wrecked at Bennington curve in the mountains near Altoona, killed its enginemen when it plunged from the rails, down the embankment (as shown above), and turned over on its side. Four cars were derailed, one seesawing on the edge of the bank and the club car rolling down the hill and upsetting.

MT. LEBANON CARS CRASH

Several persons narrowly escaped injury by shattered glass when two Mt. Lebanon street cars crashed last night at West Liberty and Brookside avenues. Both cars were inbound. The second car crashed into the rear of the first, damaging the rear end and shattering the windows of both cars. Defective brakes was said to be the cause of the accident.

ASK VIEWERS APPOINTED TO VALUE SCHOOL SITE

Attorney J. Rogers McCreery, solicitor for the Board of Public Education, has filed a petition in Common Pleas Court asking for the appointment of three viewers to assess damages on a large tract of land in Chartiers avenue, Twentieth ward, owned by the heirs of Elizabeth Douglas, which it is desired to acquire by condemnation proceedings. The school board wants possession of the property for a school and playground site. The court has fixed September 27 as the date for the hearing on the subjects at issue.

FAIL TO FIND WILL OF MRS. HILL; STILL HUNT SO

ACCUSED YOUTH MAY INHERIT ESTATE

By Universal Service.

STREATOR, Ill., Aug. 31.—As the search for Harry Hill, charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Eliza Hill, wealthy divorcee, was continued today, authorities opened the slain woman's safety deposit box in a local bank to discover that it contained no will.

In the event Mrs. Hill died intestate, property she owns in and near Springfield, Ill., and her home here, as well as substantial bank deposits, will go to her son.

They will, in that case, provide him with ample resources for a legal fight if he is captured.

Dr. H. C. Hill, father of Harry, in his first public statement since the crime was discovered, declared he does not believe the boy is guilty.

FIRST AID TEAMS WITNESS MIMIC MINE BLAST

First aid teams and mine rescue workers from all quarters of the United States and Canada attending the sixth international contest under the auspices of the Bureau of Mines at Bruceton this morning witnessed the terrors of a coal dust explosion at the government's experimental mine. The blowing up of the demonstration pit was the big feature in the entertainment of nearly 500 visiting rescuers.

The 47 first-aid teams are competing for silver cups and other prizes offered to the most proficient of the groups skilled in rescue work in industry. At the same time there are 19 mine rescue teams in the joint contest, which is the largest held here since 1911. Returning from Bruceton at noon today the teams were scheduled to hold their finals at the Pitt Stadium during the afternoon. Tomorrow morning a mine rescue contest will be held on the campus of the Carnegie Institute of Technology and in the evening the prizes will be awarded at a banquet to be held in Syria Mosque.

States represented by teams in the first-aid contest are: Arizona, 2; California, 1; Colorado, 1; Illinois, 4; Indiana, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maryland, 1; Montana, 1; Pennsylvania, 29; Utah, 1; Virginia, 3, and West Virginia, 4.

'PAY DAY' BARES BIG CHICAGO RUM PLANT

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—A five story whisky distillery, which prohibition agents claim has been operating for months under police protection, was seized by Assistant Prohibition Administrator White. The distillery was located just outside the loop in a fashionable hotel district.

The still is reported to have a capacity of 38,000 gallons a day. The raid netted 250,000 gallons of mash and a quanity of whisky valued at about $250,000. It was stated that the equipment would be of like value.

Federal operatives claimed they obtained a tip to the distillery at a weekly pay off for protection.

A grand jury investigation of the graft angle will be started at once, it was stated. The pay-off is accomplished the dry agents stated in an office not far from the city hall and county building. The graft is said to involve high police officials.

The distillery was cloaked behind a second hand furniture establishment. Two others escaped by way of a fire escape.

At the same time indictments were returned before Justice Samuel Alschuler in United States court charging officials of the newly incorporated town of Calumet with violation of the federal prohibition law.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES SPEAK AT TWO MEETINGS

BLOOD POISONING PREVENTED BY PROMPT ACTION

Mother tells of soothing ointment that should be in every home

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 15:—"My baby's arm was burned very badly and a neighbor advised me to apply Resinol Ointment. I did and the arm healed in no time and I had no trouble with it. Now I always use Resinol at once when the children are cut or scratched or burned or hurt in any way that might cause blood poisoning, as I find that it stops the hurting and heals so quickly. I really think it is the best on the market and I absolutely would not be without it in my home."—(Signed) Mrs. Frank Haberman, 611 Kelton Ave.

Your druggist sells Resinol Ointment. He will be glad to supply you.

NUN COLLAPSES, DIES AT PARISH HOUSE

While assisting yesterday in preparations for the opening of the fall term at St. Francis Xavier parochial school, California avenue, Sister Mary Anselm Doherty collapsed in the yard of the parish house and died.

Sister Mary had been a prominent figure in the Roman Catholic educational and religious life of Pittsburgh for almost half a century. She was born in Pittsburgh and was admitted to the Order of Mercy 41 years ago. Since that time she had been a worker and teacher in St. Francis Xavier school, St. Paul's Orphanage, the Home for Working Girls, in Webster avenue, Mt. Mercy Academy and many of the smaller schools and homes conducted by the Order of Mercy.

She leaves relatives in Pittsburgh, Latrobe and Chicago.

ASKS BIG LABOR REGISTRATION

Urging a large Labor party registration, Leonard Craig, county chairman, today issued a statement warning voters of that party to support only real Labor candidates. The Labor ticket advanced by Mr. Craig and Herman Gordon, secretary, follows:

For controller—John Otis. For treasurer—E. J. Horack. For recorder—Otto Yeager. For register of wills—Maude S. Richter. For clerk of courts—Sam Shore. For prothonotary—J. H. Lohr. For city controller—Robert Lieberman. For Council—H. D. Gardner, D. Rienne, M. Jenkins and A. Horvart.

CONSIDER PLEA OF HEWITT

JEFFERSON, O., Aug. 31.—(International News Service.)—The Court of Appeals, sitting here this week, announced today that it had taken under advisement an appeal for a new trial filed by attorneys for Floyd Hewitt, 16, of Conneaut, convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Hewitt was found guilty of murdering Mrs. Celia Brown and her 5-year-old son, Fred Brown, Jr., at the Brown home in North Conneaut February 14. He admitted the crime, pleading that he became "crazed" by jazz music during a visit to the home.

BLIND 37 YEARS: EXPECTS TO VOTE

NEW CASTLE, Aug. 31.—Blind for 37 years, Charley Thomas is preparing to maintain his record of never failing to vote by having persons read to him the qualifications of the different candidates to be balloted for at the September primaries. He says he will vote even if it is necessary to hire a boy to guide him to his voting district in Clifton Flats.

—Beaver Is Advancing in Price

This is a presentation with a price appeal which will be appreciated by fashion-wise young women who know that one's autumn costume should have at least a touch of brown, and that, consequently, beaver trimming is exceedingly fashionable.

Silver beaver, tawny beneath but with an over-tone in silver effect, and deep, dark beaver—furs of luxurious quality—are applied to these coats as Queen Anne or roll shawl collars, and cuffs.

The coats, in three models, are of dull-surfaced and velvet-like fabrics whose richness matches the fur. In newtan, moonlight blue and volga green.

A New Showing of Cartwright Dresses

Cartwright, the rare, the delightful, the exclusive, in dresses for spectator and active sports wear, present their new models in The Sportswear Shop. They are exclusive at Horne's.

Models of jersey and other light-weight cloths and of silks, show new lines, new colorings, and new finishes.

Some of the dresses are smartly plain, others are finished with the Scandinavian art embroidery for which this line is so noted.

A New Reversible Silk

A new fabric of luxuriously heavy silk with two entirely different, but charmingly harmonious surfaces . . . .

A gleaming, richly lustrous satin back is faced in some cases with a stiple-subdued diagonal plaid in harmonizing shades . . . .

Alternate two-inch squares of satin and crepe are broken on the opposite side of the fabric into half-inch figured checks, using several rich colors . . . .

For afternoon and street frocks of distinction and charm . . . .

The two harmonizing surfaces combined in slenderizing or height-abbreviating lines, as you prefer . . . .

The right pattern, flat-fell seams—and you have a reversible garment, to be worn on one side one day, other-side-out the next!

Combinations in which black, blue, red, and brown predominate . . . .

For Frocks to Wear Without Coats

New Wool Georgette

This most-talked-of of the new sheer dress woolens has an attractive square weave, firm, but not close. It has all the warmth which is natural to wool without being in the least heavy or stiff.

The pleats and tucks upon which the present straight lined sports and street mode depends for interest may be used in dresses of wool georgette most successfully. And the final effect is trim, graceful, and feminine.

Two and a half yards of this 54-inch fabric are sufficient for an average size dress. For school dresses a sheer woolen like this is ideal. Black, navy, and the most desirable shades of brown, tan, red, green, and blue. $6.50 yard.

FIND IMPORTANT CLUE IN GUNMAN'S SLAYING

POLICE DECLARE THREE RIVALS RESPONSIBLE

Three rivals in bootleg and white slave trade plotted and carried out the murder of James LaRosa, independent underworld operator, it was established today by homicide squad men who are hot on the trail of the gang gunmen.

A lone gunman was first believed to have shadowed LaRosa and to have killed him, under instructions from a gang leader. Detectives made their first important discovery in the case when they learned of the abcompices.

LaRosa was shot to death early Sunday as he walked out the rear door of a restaurant, next to his home at 1338 Fifth avenue. A sawed-off shot gun was fired at him.

RAID DIETZ CAFE, ARREST FIVE

State police and government prohibition agents late yesterday raided the Dietz Cafe, 305 Federal street. They reported seizing a quantity of liquor and five slot machines. J. H. Dietz and Walter J. Dietz, alleged proprietors; G. Gardner and H. Lemon, bartenders, and Michael Kushia, an employe, who were arrested, were released under bonds pending a hearing before the United States commissioner.

SACCO DEFENSE FUND FRAUD CHARGED

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Openly declaring severance of all relations with the Communists, Aldino Felicani, organizer of the original Boston Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, charged that agencies of the Third Internationale had seized upon the case merely to propagate their own cause and had withheld huge sums of collected money.

His direct attack upon the Moscow organizations brought into the open whisperings of months, even years. He announced an investigation to learn what happened to $500,000 which the Internationale press correspondence of Moscow said had been raised for the defense of the two men by American Communists.

"From all sources in the United States the Communists have turned over to us only $6,000 in seven years," said the Boston leader.

The break was with both the International Defense Committee, usually referred to as the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, and the New York Emergency Committee for Sacco and Vanzetti.

"In the last three years, the International Labor Defense Committee has collected at least $18,000 for the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti," said Felicani. "The Boston committee received only $1,000.

"The New York emergency committee collected $7,000 in one mass meeting in Madison Square Garden last April. They sent us only $500 and the information that they were $1,500 in the hole."

The Boston committee, he said, has spent between $350,000 and $360,000 in the seven years of its existence, and its funds are now low, although, he added, money had been promised for the completion of its program.

LINEMAN TAKES 15,200 VOLTS AND STILL LIVES

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 31.—Jefferson Goodwin, 48, a lineman for the Public Service Company, is believed to be the only man alive who has taken 15,200 volts of electricity through his body. While Goodwin was working on a transformer the heavy shock went through his body, knocking him out for more than an hour.

There is just one right way to keep the skin clear and smooth

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and I had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1257 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

LEVINE MAY ABANDON HOP

CONSIDERS TRY FOR ENDURANCE RECORD

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Charles A. Levine announced today that he would abandon his plans for a trans-atlantic flight if the monoplane St. Raphael, with two men and a woman aboard, succeeded in the effort begun today to fly from England to Ottawa, Canada.

Levine said he would make a flight eastward in an attempt to establish a new long distance and endurance record if the St. Raphael was successful.

"I wanted to be the first to cross from this side," Levine said, "but there's no point in going if Minchin succeeds. Anyhow, I have other flights in mind."

Capt. Hinchcliffe, whom Levine has contracted to pilot his plane, the Colombia, on the projected return flight to the United States, is regarded as one of the world's finest civilian pilots. He is the only British pilot who has been granted permission to hold a full license after losing the sight of one eye. Hinchcliffe suffered this injury in the World War.

Mrs. Levine sails for America aboard the Ile De France from Plymouth at 10 o'clock tonight. Levine plans to accompany his wife to Plymouth, returning immediately to Cranwell, possibly by airplane.

LATE RUSH FOR DIVORCES

Saturday will be the last day for filing libels in divorce for the October term. As a result, numerous cases have been filed this week.

The following actions were begun in Common Pleas Court alleging desertion: Anna Mathes, 261 Melwood street, vs. Charles J. Mathes; John P. Mahaven, 615 Carson street, vs. Charlotte M. Mahaven; Nellie Mc-Naughter, 422 Mifflin street, vs. Thomas McNaughton; Cora B. Richie, Findley township, vs. Robert A. Richie; Helen L. Butterworth, 537 Penn avenue, vs. W. Healy Butterworth; William Lowe, 2451 Wadsworth street, vs. Mamie Lowe.

Determined

JOSEPH BENCHINA

When his wife hid his clothes, Joseph Benchina, 40, of Johnsonburg, donned hers and paid the city a visit. When he tried to register at a hotel the clerk called police, and this morning Joseph told the whys and wherefores to Magistrate George England. It seems Joseph had been tipping glasses up until they were very, very empty and so on and so on. Benching was fined $10, and male attire was brought to him.

CONTRACTS FOR COUNTY WORK AWARDED

These contracts, totaling $281,019.95, were awarded today by the county commissioners and controller:

Paving of substructure and south approach to Liberty bridge, $139,092.50, Dunn & Ryan Contracting Company; wooden post barriers, $47,035.30, W. L. Evans Construction Company; electric wiring Liberty bridge, $10,888, Delmer Electric Company; street lights for registration board, $2,769.40; bronze clock for City-County building, $1,355, All-Steel Equipment Company; erection of substructure for Chartiers Creek bridge, $79,880.75, James W. Powers.

Controller Charles C. McGovern averred that the county should make sure that Dunn & Ryan could complete the Liberty bridge project before the contract was awarded. A representative appeared and assured the company's financial condition. McGovern then approved the award.

The following bids were opened: Paint for handrailing of Liberty bridge, $677.60, Joseph B. Sipe Company; paint for Chartiers Creek bridge, $420.55, W. W. Lawrence Company; raising parapets of Painter's Run bridge, $3,100, Pike & Miller, Inc.

M'GOVERN WANTS TO 'FINISH JOB'

Controller C. C. McGovern is a candidate to succeed himself because he has found "things so rotten and inconsistent" that he feels compelled "to go through with the job he has started," he told the Kiwanis Club of Homestead yesterday. He invited all civic organizations to send committees to his office to determine for themselves the true condition of the county's books.

"Whether I'm elected or not, you'll find my inquiry into the county's business going on just the same on September 21," he said. "The issue of this campaign is sound business government and control of finances and that is bigger than any individual. Right now I'm holding up large sums and if there was not something rotten in Denmark the commissioners would take me into court about it."

ONLY ONE MOVIE IS OPERATING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—America's second largest city remained virtually without movies today with theater owners and union operators deadlocked in their dispute over two of the operators.

No settlement was in sight as the shut-down moved into the third day, with $75,000,000 in theater property and 25,000 movie employes idle.

Only one low-priced movie was open in the loop, and a scattered few neighborhood houses kept the lockout from being 100 per cent throughout the metropolitan area. It was pointed out, however, that even these would be forced to close if film exchanges refuse to distribute any more films.

The following were estimates of the figures involved:

Theaters idle—350.
Total seats—372,000.
Usual daily patronage—400,000.
Daily loss of revenue—$225,000.
Value of property—$75,000,000.
Employes affected—25,000.

MOTHER IS HELD ON ABANDONMENT CHARGE

GREENSBURG, Aug. 31.—Alleged to have abandoned her five children, going to Pittsburgh to work in a restaurant, Mrs. Mary E. Mowry, 42, of East Kensington, is being held here in the county jail. She was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace A. F. McKinney, of New Kensington.

PRESIDENT OF GOODRICH COMPANY DIES ABROAD

AKRON, O., Aug. 31.—(AP.)—B. G. Work, president of the B. F. Goodrich Tire and Rubber Company, is dead in St. Marks, Switzerland, said word received at the company offices here today from their New York representatives. Death was attributed to heart disease, from which Mr. Work had been ill for some time. Mr. Work left the United States a month ago for a trip in Europe. He was unaccompanied.

It looks clean—but is it?

THE carpet looks freshly swept. The hangings look bright. But are you sure they are clean? Are you sure the fabric-destroying grit is gone?

If they have been cleaned with two actions, you can be sure. It takes a motor-driven brush and vigorous suction to get all the dirt.

The Premier Duplex has a motor-driven brush and powerful suction. They work together with double action. The brush sweeps the surface bright and dislodges the sharp grit. The suction bags all.

The Premier Duplex is always on the job. It never has an "off day" for want of oil. Ball bearings in brush and motor keep it supplied with years of lubricant. It is always ready to get all the dirt everywhere in the house!

"The Best Place To Shop, After All."

The loveliest complexions of Europe were cared for with a castile far less fine than DOÑA

THE golden women of Valencia call it jabon duro, the Parisienne speaks of Savon Marseilles—but it is the same incomparable toiletry, Castile toilet soap. For six hundred years the Beauty and Fashion of Europe have treasured Castile for its matchless, bland, cleansing virtue, perfect for a woman's delicate skin.

And for six hundred years no one has been able to improve on its irreproachable quality. Irreproachable? As far as results go, yes—but American women have asked for a finer Castile, exquisite in the little things that are so enormously important—in short, a true Castile Beauty Soap.

And we have given it to them—a lovely Castile such as Europe never knew, that no great lady could buy. Doña* Castile! Adding to the ancient purity and bland cleansing virtue of Castile—simply the refinements. What you have always wanted!

Doña will give you a quick, generous lather even in cold water (instant rinsing too). It's moulded in a delicious shape for your hand, "hard-milled" so it will last, and comes to you sealed in a smart wrapper. And not too costly to use lavishly. What luxury! Doña Castile—remember when you buy your next toilet soap. And you can buy it almost anywhere.

MAN WHO SHOT SELF DIES

A self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head caused the death in the Homeopathic Hospital early today of Charles Richler, 62, of 207 Rustic avenue, Mt. Oliver. He had been despondent over ill health and shot himself in his room Sunday night.

MAY MAKE SEAMLESS STEEL TUBE GUNS HERE

Pittsburgh is expected to become the manufacturing center for seamless steel tube guns if experiments being made prove successful. Three-inch anti-aircraft guns are being made from the tubes here, and the Government is experimenting on larger weapons of similar make. Six-inch guns can be made by this process and larger ones may be possible, according to Capt. F. A. McMahon, executive officer at the Pittsburgh district ordnance office.

LIGONIER FAIR OPENS, PRIZE HORSES ENTERED

LIGONIER, Pa., Aug. 31.—The Ligonier Valley fair opened here today with unusually good exhibits in all departments. The fair will continue through Saturday. Some of the best horses in the world are being shown, including a four-horse team of Belgian mares from the Rolling Rock farms, and the thoroughbred stallion Ligonier, owned by Richard K. Mellon.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN CONGRESS CLUBHOUSE

Members of the Congress of Clubs returning from summer vacations will note many changes in the Penn avenue clubhouse. On entering the door one's attention is immediately caught by the new Colonial wall paper which adds so much dignity to the long hallway. This same pattern extends to the Englert room beyond. The wood work throughout the house has been painted in a soft, old ivory tint and the wall papers have been chosen to accord with it. A large figured pattern, rich and colorful, adorns the walls of the McCahill dining room and across the hall the lounge has been done in a warm blue and rose floral design, a most artistic blending with a hint of Japan in it. The Rieck dining room, while not so recently done, has a deep rose as its predominating tone and here new curtains are being hung. The Fleming room on the second floor is now used for small assembly purposes and for the various classes conducted under Mrs. Dulce Fiske Fairman. The Young Women's room, at the rear of the president's office, has been converted into an office for Mrs. W. W. Bryant, secretary to the president. Mrs. Carl L. Coslowsky. The president's office, too, has been papered in a neat well-covered pattern. To Mrs. James C. Mace and her co-workers of the house committee goes full credit for their excellent taste, as well as for the hours and hours consumed in supervising the improvements.

Robert Siwan Chapter No. 293, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold its annual boat ride on the Homer Smith tomorrow with these committees in charge: General and tickets, Mrs. Roberta Robinson; prizes, Mrs. Cortula Loos and Mrs. Ursula King; cards, Mrs. Gertrude Dietrich and Mrs. Mellond Smith; safety, Mrs. Jessie McWilliams; publicity, Mrs. Marie Schaefer and Mrs. Alice Basler.

* * *

Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs, and Mr. Coslowsky are entertaining as their house guests Miss Marie Coslowsky, Mrs. J. B. Goodwin, Jr., sisters of their host, and Mrs. Goodwin's son, J. B., Jr. The visitors will remain until their new home in Clarion is completed.

Announcing— Hermes' Extra Quality Home-Made

ICE CREAM

PLAIN VANILLA · COMBINATION FLAVORS

RESPONDING to the requests of Pittsburghers, the Hermes-Groves Dairy Company offers to the public starting September 1st, a new brick of ice cream. We call it the Hermes "Home-Made Brick", because it is superior in every way to the ice creams you have been buying.

The new brick is home made, in the simplicity of the receipe, high quality of ingredients, the scientific care of mixing, freezing and delivering.

Hermes Groves "Home-Made Brick" contains only rich yellow cream, pure cane sugar and the finest of flavoring materials. Then frozen to a hard, yet creamy, smoothness, packed in sealed cartons, never touched by hand.

Creating this new brick is a real culinary attainment; deliberately selling this brick at 50c a quart retail is a commercial sensation.

No ordinary home made ice cream can compare with Hermes Home-Made brick. Try it. Write or telephone us your comments on it.

WEST END BANK TO OPEN NEW QUARTERS

The West End Savings Bank and Trust Company will open its new bank building, South Main and Wabash streets, West End, on Friday evening. This will mark the climax of 56 years of banking progress for the institution.

The new building is a monumental structure in monolithic granite located in the heart of the West End business district. It is completely fireproof. A committee room will be available for business meetings of customers. Comfortable rest rooms are being equipped with all conveniences. A modern device makes it possible for customers to bank at night. A locked receptacle carries the deposits to the vault where it remains until the next business day.

The institution at the present time has almost $5,000,000 in deposits. Its capital is $125,000, surplus $500,000 and undivided profits $200,000.

The officers of the bank are: President, H. S. Hershberger; vice president, Albert Graham; treasurer, George T. Osborne, and secretary, W. D. Flanigan; directors, Albert Graham, William Kossler, Alexander Williamson, Joseph J. Vigneau, Louis J. Heckler, George T. Osborne and Harry S. Hershberger.

these college men cheer for three-button suits by Society Brand

A far fetched illustration, perhaps, but symbolic of the high regard college men hold for the 3-button style. A check up on the campus would reveal an overwhelming preference for this model.

And you can't blame them. There's nothing smarter, especially when done with an air of careless correctness that distinguishes the Society Brand cut. Straight, full coat; broad shouldered; with high lapels that look equally well with one, two or three buttons fastened.

In new college fabrics and colors you'll find nowhere else. Ask to see the "Dunlin" model at $50.

Norma Shearer Not Allowing Engagement Ring to Interfere With Her Shadow Stage Career

By LOUELLA A. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.

WELL, I am back in New York. A year's absence has not made much difference, the Woolworth Building and the subways are still the same, and the theaters are twinkling just as gaily. Sitting here away from the studios I find news news travels as fast, or even faster, than gossip.

Norma Shearer is not letting that big diamond engagement ring interfere with her career. She has already started plans for "Trelawny of the Wells," and who do you think is going to direct her? Sidney Franklin, who knows so well how to direct a Mid-Victorian drama with the whimsical, tender sentiment of this old fashioned play.

Ralph Forbes, who within the last few months has become Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most promising leading man, has been assigned to play opposite Norma. And just between you and me and the gate post, Norma says her engagement to Irving Thalberg, production boss of M.-G.-M., doesn't make a lot of difference in her work. She has to argue just as hard on costumes, stories and so forth.

That is certainly something after being in the movies as many years as he has. Lionel Barrymore in the absence of Chaliapin will play the lead in Griffith's next picture, which is now called "Drums of Love." Well anyway we know Lionel Barrymore will give a good performance, and Chaliapin as a movie actor may have been a fine singer. You never know.

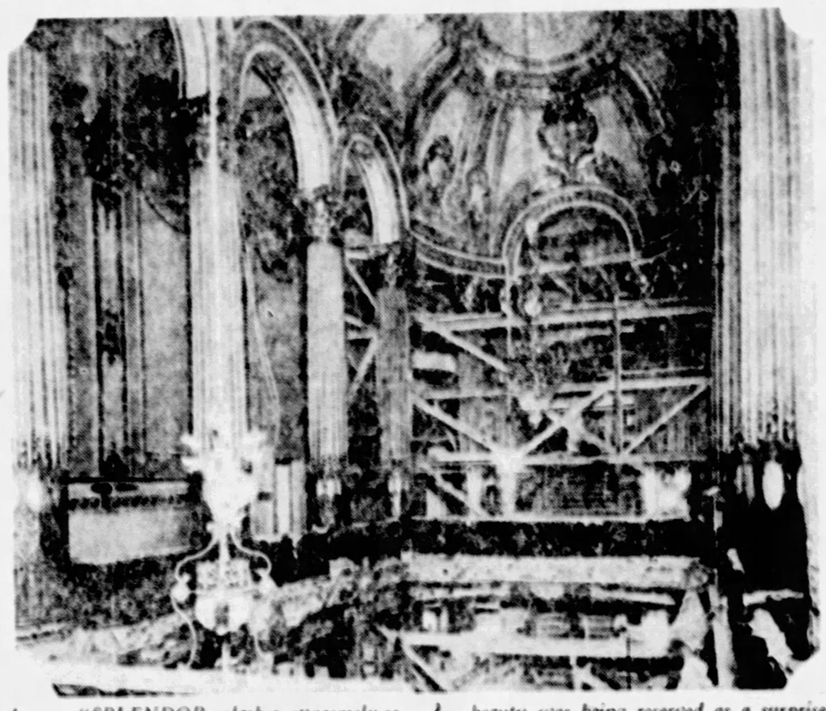
I am told that Chaliapin sends his regrets to D. W. Griffith and states he is sorry he cannot be in the movies, but he hears the opera calling him. I really did not have much hope that D. W. would be able to get Chaliapin, yet D. W. is always enthusiastic and always optimistic.

The handsome Joseph schildkraut is going to do a Lon Chaney and play a hunchback. Type as he is called by friends, must like the part, for he is not the kind to be willing to disguise his youth and good looks unless he felt he was given a part that would give him abundant opportunity to shine. He plays a hunchback in "The Blue Danube," opposite Leatrice Joy. It was the hunchback role in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," that first started Lon Chaney in his present method of masquerade. Who knows what may happen to Joseph Schildkraut?

The Haltons are separating. I do not mean a divorce, but Pauline is on her way here to New York to put on "Synthetic Sin." That's the play that opened in Los Angeles and which was later bought for Colleen Moore. Frederick remains in Hollywood to complete a series of pictures. He will join his wife in the East in time for the opening of their play in September. So you see their separation is only a matter of a week or so.

Siren Calls Him -:- One Glimpse of Glory -:- Soft-Hearted George

JOSEPH SCHILDKRAUT, lured from a promising career on the stage to Hollywood, is reported to have heard the siren call of the "speakies" again. He has heard Belasco, to state the fact clearly. He is wanted for "The Emperor and the Ballerina."



"SPLENDOR splashes, supremely seductive," are the words a gifted press agent might use in describing the glorious richness of the decorations and appointments of the new Penn. All this ornate beauty was being reserved as a surprise for the public, but our photographer got past the guards to get this picture, showing the collonade and dome of the lobby from the mezzanine. Behind the columns and scaffolds are a score of decorators.

HARD-BOILED parts which usually are given to George Faucett are no indication of this popular player's real character. Mr. Faucett, truth to tell, is a poet. Many of his verses have been published and he is said to have enough for a volume.

How Folks Grow Thin

Folks do grow thin, as you know. Excess fat is not nearly so common as it was. But so many do it by abnormal exercise and diet.

The modern way is Marmola Prescription Tablets, based on many years of scientific research, here and abroad. They act to correct the cause. People have used them for 19 years, and reported the results to others. You see the results in every circle. Almost everyone has friends who can tell them.

The use of Marmola requires no abnormal exercise or diet. One simply takes four tablets daily until the weight comes down to normal. The results are healthful, and many other benefits accrue.

You should learn this fact, as millions have done before you. Watch the reduction, watch the gain in vitality. You will be amazed and delighted.

Do this now, for your own sake. Excess weight is usually unnecessary. It is a blight. Learn how easily you can overcome it, and how the reduction lasts. Go try Marmola now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

MILLER'S ORCHESTRA IS SANDERS' FEATURE

Ray Miller and his recording orchestra are playing a week's engagement for the dancing at Sanders, on the Freeport highway, Aspinwall, presenting a completely changed program of dance and specialty numbers for this, the second week in which they have appeared at Sanders this season.

Beginning next Monday night, Labor Day evening, Jack Crawford and his orchestra are to open a week's engagement at Sanders, marking the opening of the fall season at Sanders. There is dancing nightly at Sanders on the glass dance floor.

BEBE STARTS NEW FAD—IT'S BIRD PINS THIS TIME

Bebe Daniels is Hollywood's best little faddist. She's always starting something. Just now it is bird pins that she is interested in. She has pins with the heads of roosters, an ostrich, a peacock, a swan, a stork, an eagle and a quail. She uses them on her hats, frocks, purses and in her hair. More and better birds is the order to the jewelers. They are in miniature, made of platinum or Chinese gold, set with diamonds or brilliants.

La Rocque's New Film Brain-Child of Gardener

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—You can never tell when an idea for a scenario is going to light. Cecil B. DeMille has a gardener by the name of George Pouty who modestly suggested that he had an idea for a motion picture. Now, Cecil DeMille is a busy man, but he wasn't too busy to let the gardener have his say.

Result—A nice fat check and a story titled "Stand and Deliver," to be produced with Rod La Rocque in the leading role. Both Rod and his boss think so well of the gardener's story that it has been placed ahead of "Hold 'Em Yale," originally scheduled as Rod's next picture.

It deals with the unrest in Greece during the war and gives Vilma Banky's husband a chance to be a real hero. Vilma, by the way, begins work immediately, also, so the two newlyweds can start married life by driving to the studio every day together. They will be working in Culver City.

STERLING IS PREPARING FOR BUTTON KING ROLE

Ford Sterling has been relieved of his original assignment to support Bebe Daniels in her new comedy, "She's a Sheik," in order that he may have no distractions or conflicts in his work in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" which soon is to go into production at the Paramount studio. Sterling will have the juicy role of Gus Eisman, the button king, in the gold-digger classic.

LOUISE LORRAINE CAST WITH ARTHUR AND DANE

Louise Lorraine has been cast for the role of Helen in "Baby Mine," the stage farce, which is being put on the screen as a starring vehicle for the comedy team of George K. Arthur and Karl Dane. This is the second picture in which Miss Lorraine has played with Dane and Arthur, the first being "Rookies."

ST. LOUIS DIRECTOR FOR PENN ORCHESTRA

Don Albert, conductor who will wield the baton at the gala opening ceremonies of the new Loew's Penn, September 3, is no stranger to music lovers of Pittsburgh. In keeping with the policy of the new theater, Loew's, Incorporated, will present to its Pittsburgh audiences the highest types of entertainment, and that policy has robbed St. Louis of its most prominent musicians.

For the past three years Don Albert has directed Loew's State Theater Symphony Orchestra, in St. Louis. He is an Italian by birth, graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music in Naples, where Caruso and others of operatic fame were educated.

"SADIE" COMPANY BUSY ANOTHER THREE WEEKS

Gloria Swanson's seven days in Catalina have lengthened into three weeks. Some of the exterior scenes in "Sadie Thompson" had to be retaken. It is always that way in the movies. Lois Wilson and Ariette Marchal have been spending the past week with Gloria and all of them return this week, including the company and Raoul Walsh, the director. There are three weeks more of shooting before "Sadie" is completed. It looks now as if "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" will be Gloria's next picture, to go into production almost immediately.

EMIL JANNINGS SIGNS LONG-TERM CONTRACT

Emil Janning, the German actor, has just signed a new long-term contract with Paramount pictures. Under the agreement he will make four feature pictures a year. The success of his first American-made picture, "The Way of All Flesh," was so great that Paramount hastened to insure his continued service with the company.

Screen Actors Learn What Cadets Mean By "Turkey"

A West Point menu, served with traditional West Point etiquette, was arranged by the academy chef for members of the Pathe-DeMille company now filming "The West Pointer" at the government institution.

William Boyd, star of "The West Pointer;" Donald Crisp, director; Douglas Z. Doty, scenarist, and other members of the cast were invited to the mess hall. The menu was as follows:

"Turkey"—hash, so called because it is usually "foul," according to the cadets; "spuds"—potatoes; "punk and grease"—bread and butter; "sammy"—syrup; "gravy"—ketchup; "Felix trembles"—a gelatin dessert.

The "gunner," the plebe who does the serving, was kept busy, as many of the cadets had been working in "The West Pointer" during the morning, and all had good appetites. The players were interested in the "water corporal," who sees that the water glasses are kept filled; the "coffee corporal," who has a similar duty with coffee cups, and other table officers. They also learned that if you shout "Small dish and—," that the dessert would be passed to you.

Screen Star's Fiancee To Give Up Career On Marriage

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Richard Barthelmess and Miss Katherine Young Wilson, who have just announced their engagement, posed happily for their first picture together yesterday.

The noted movie star and his actress fiancee declare their marriage will endure. They give as a reason that neither fell in love with the other at first sight. Romance developed from companionship and understanding.

After the pictures were taken Barthelmess and Miss Wilson left for a house party on Long Island. She plans never to return to the stage nor to act in Barthelmess' pictures, no matter how much she is persuaded, believing that marriage and a career for a wife do not go together.

'MAN CRAZY' ANNOUNCED FOR DOROTHY MACKAILL

Announcement has been made that the next vehicle for the Jack Mulhall-Dorothy Mackaill team will be "Man Crazy." This is an adaptation from "Clarissa of the Post Road," a story by Grace Sartwell Mason. It will be produced by Charles R. Rogers and directed by John Francis Dillon.

This is the same combination of producer, director and players who were responsible for the recent success, "Smile, Brother, Smile."

HOLIDAY MATINEE OPENER IN ALVIN

The Alvin will reopen in a splurge of redecorations Monday afternoon, Labor Day, with Clark and McCullough in "The Ramblers." Many players of note accompany Clark and McCullough. A feature is Marie Saxon, who was starred on Broadway in "Merry Merry" and "My Girl" for her dance prowess. Georgia O'Ramey also is to be prominent.

The seat sale for "Manhattan Mary," George White's new musical comedy, starring Ed Wynn, opens in the Nixon box office tomorrow morning.

"Three Wise Fools," Austin Strong's comedy-drama, will be the offering of the George Sharp Production Company, in the Pitt, opening with a Labor Day matinee Monday. This production was a sensational success in New York, and other large cities of this country, Australia and Great Britain. It played here with Helen Menken during the season 1923-6. Thurston Hall and Anne Forrest will play the leading roles in the Pitt next week.

Booked for the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week, Ned Wayburn's Variety Show will present many specialty acts. The screen feature will be "Is Zat So?" with Edmund Lowe and George O'Brien.

"Around the World Revue" is coming next week to the Gayety twice daily. Featured in the company are Howard Blair, female impersonator, Hall Kennedy, first comic, Roy Butler, second comic, and a chorus of 24 dancing girls.

FRENCH MINISTER VISITS CITY

SAYS FRANCE WILL WELCOME LEGION

France has declared a national holiday for September 19 and her citizens will join in tribute to members of the American Legion on that day, Maurice Bukanowski, French Minister of Commerce, Communications and Aviation, said today when he paid a hurried trip to Pittsburgh on his way back to Paris to welcome the "Second A. E. F." The protests over the Sacco-Vanzetti executions created an erroneous impression as to the opinion of the mass of Frenchmen, he declared. Above (left to right): Garreau, attache of the French embassy; Maurice Bukanowski, Jr., M. Bukanowski and President Thomas S. Baker of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Boys' Model Airplanes Go on Exhibition

With the National Aircraft Model Test for fliers out of the way, the last showing in the Sun-Telegraph, Bureau of Recreation contest will end next week, when all the planes in the contest will be exhibited in the foyer of the City-County building, Grant street.

There, on Saturday, the third day of the exhibit for model airplanes built by Western Pennsylvania boys, the big silver trophy will be awarded, and prizes given for the best exhibit planes.

Hundreds viewed the soaring miniature flyers in Schenley Oval yesterday. The committee of judges included James J. Wagner, chairman of the junior activities, National Aeronautical Association, and located at Mayer Field; Raymond Marlier, president of the Pittsburgh Aero Club; Col. Harry Fry, of the Chamber of Commerce, and D. Barr Peat, a friend of Col. Lindbergh and manager of Bettis Field. These men, with J. J. Isherwood, of the Recreation Bureau, conducted the contest.

MEDALS AWARDED

Gold and silver Sun-Telegraph medals were given winners in the scientific model contest for duration: Ray Reismyer, first; Dick Lawlor, second; Walter McFeaters, third, and William Mellor, fourth.

The junior winners in this test were Charles Mayer, Charles Reith, Otto Paginini, with Carl Kestner and Paul Yohe tied for fourth.

Winners of the distance flight test were Charles Reith, first; Charles Mayer, second; Otto Paginini, third and Paul Yohe, fourth.

The glider winners were Walter McFeaters, first, and Joseph Collette, second.

All entrants in the final exhibit next week will have their planes at the City-County Building lobby next Wednesday afternoon. They will be exhibited Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with the prizes and big trophy given the last day.

Stage Offer Thrills Miss Pittsburgh

An opportunity to gain another new existence reached me today. Of course, it would not occur until after the Atlantic City national bathing beauty pageant next week, but it is due to holding the title of "Miss Pittsburgh 1927" that it has been extended.

Some have probably guessed what it might be. It is an offer to appear on the stage. The invitation has been extended through the pageant headquarters. One of New York's prominent producers of musical comedies is making an offer to winners of intercity titles for a season contract after the pageant is over.

Yes, there is a kind of a thrill as I think of the possibility of the offer. It will probably be the means of the start of a stage career for the titleholders who accept the engagements. But I do not know if I'll be among the members or not. Some times a stage career appeals to my fancies; then again, home life seems all the more favorable to me. So I do not know if the offer interests, but I know there will be no decision until after the pageant events. It is a chance for a new thrill, though.

$30,000 ASKED IN TWO DAMAGE SUITS

Kathryn Schlachter entered suit in Common Pleas Court against John and Elizabeth Uhrin for $20,000 damages, claiming she was permanently injured in an automobile accident, due to their negligence. Joseph Kisel brought an action for $10,000 against the City of McKeesport, claiming he tripped on a pile of gravel in West South avenue and was permanently injured.

Steam purifiers formerly manufactured by the Tracy Engineering Company of San Francisco will be manufactured in Pittsburgh by the Andrews-Bradshaw Company, which has acquired the property and patents of the San Francisco concern. The local company will operate in a plant at Forty-ninth and Harrison streets.

To Keep that Schoolgirl Complexion

By VILMA BANKY

© 1927 Fawcett Beauty Features

Don't gamble with your skin. Use only a true complexion soap

SKIN cleanliness is the modern basis of beauty. The rule for that schoolgirl complexion is never to leave powder, make-up or rouge on your face over night.

Now beauty experts urge careful washing with soap and water, regularly, each night.

But be sure you use only a true complexion soap. Be sure it is a beauty soap, one made for that purpose and no other. For otherwise you risk much.

Palmolive Soap has changed the world's conception of what a beauty soap should be. Before its creation all soaps were adjudged too harsh for women's faces.

Made of true cosmetic oils, made solely for ONE purpose, to protect the skin, Palmolive is the most widely urged soap in the world today for complexion use. In Paris it is supplanting domestic soaps.

For true skin beauty, get Palmolive today. Cleanse the skin with its balmy olive and palm lather regularly, and particularly at bedtime every night.

Do that for one week. Note how much better your skin. Costs but 10c a cake. Take care that you get the genuine Palmolive. Green soaps represented as of olive and palm oils are not the same. They are but crude imitations. The Palmolive-Peet Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

DOWNEY DEATH TESTS TROOPER REVENGE

ALERT

Swift, sure, alert is the Pennsylvania State Constabulary. Private Michael Powell (above), crack rider of Troop A, Greensburg barracks, assigned to seek the slayer of Private John A. Downey at Armstrong, Chestwick, during a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration.

"Get Your Man," the ever-thought-of axiom of the state police, has been challenged for the ninth time in the 22 years of the force's history insofar as one of its own members has been slain. Private Downey's comrades have taken up the gauntlet zealously, for never before when a State

ACCEPT THE CHALLENGE

Trooper has been killed have the remaining ones failed in their quest to find his killer. Each man at the Greensburg barracks (some of them are shown above) is eager for the command assigning him to the Downey murderer's chase. The inset shows "Trooper," mascot of the Greensburg troop and a pet of Private Downey. Since the murder, State police have co-operated with Allegheny county detectives in working on the case. A net that has never failed is spread for the slayer.

Sally Spends Troubled Hours Wondering How to Return Mr. Peevey's $100 Loan

What Has Gone Before

Sally Jerome, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family, which consists of Mrs. Jerome, the twins, Beau and Millie, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for Mr. Peevey downtown afternoons. In the flat above the Jeromes lives young Ted Sloan, an automobile salesman, who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom she is interested is John Nye, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's in the Nye-Taylor Building. Nye hires the siren Millie as his secretary. He becomes blindly infatuated with her. Beau and Millie spend most of their earnings on themselves, and rarely give anything toward the upkeep of the house. Beau suddenly blossoms out with some flashy new clothes, lends Millie some money, and buys the liquor for a party given by his girl, Mabel Wilmot. Sally is instantly suspicious, not only because Beau works in a bank, but because he was light-fingered as a boy. The crisis comes on a Saturday night when Ted Sloan, angry with Sally because of her coldness toward him, tells her that Beau got $110 from him by means of two bad checks and threatens to make trouble for him. Sally borrows the money to pay him from Mr. Peevey and turns it over to Beau to take to him. Beau leaves the flat and elopes with Mabel Wilmot, leaving a note for Sally to "fix things with Ted."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

IN the shrouding darkness Sally shook her head, and her little chin set itself firmly. "The only decent thing to do is to give Ted the money that Beau got from him—and it was more than $100, Millie. It was $110.

For a second she was tempted to tell her the whole story. How she had gone to Mr. Peevey for a loan. How she owed him $100 now in addition to the $110 that Beau owed Ted Sloan—the $110 that she would have to pay, as she knew full well.

"Two hundred and ten dollars!" she groaned to herself. "I'll never get it paid. Never!" It was no wonder that she had a hard time getting to sleep that night.

Her last troubled thought was how to tell her mother about Beau's elopement the next morning.

Five hours later she was awakened by Mrs. Jerome herself. She was shaking her by one shoulder and telling her loudly that it was after 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Jerome was one of those early-rising people who want coffee the minute they open their eyes in the morning. She always said that it gave her a sick headache to lie awake with an empty stomach.

"Sally!" she was saying now, and she was saying it sharply. "Do wake up and don't be so lazy! I declare, if you girls would stop staying up half the night you'd be worth something to somebody the next day! Sally, do you hear me? GET UP!"

Sally stirred, stretched, and opened her blue eyes to a world of troubles.

Usually she was as light-hearted and filled with the joy of life when she woke in the morning, but depression lay heavily on her soul today. It seemed to her that all her problems waited there at her bedside for her. . . . Beau's debt, his danger, his elopement.

She got out of bed. "Yes, mother," she said, rubbing her eyes. "You want your coffee, don't you?"

"I certainly do! I'm going to have a headache if I don't have it pretty soon. I can feel one coming on." And Mrs. Jerome sighed as she went away to find the morning paper.

She was comfortably reading in her green velour chair when Sally carried her coffee and toast to her on a little tray.

"It's Sunday. Can't I have some eggs, too?" she asked, looking up in the most woe-begone way at her daughter. On Sunday the family always had eggs for breakfast as a once-a-week extravagance.

Sally shook her head. "I didn't order any yesterday," she began. "And there's only one in the house."

She stopped, and then went on quickly: "I'll fix it for you, mother. How would you like it—poached?

After all, she told herself, poor mother had so few pleasures that it was a shame ever to deprive her of anything that she wanted to eat. For eating was a passion with her.

"I'd like it fried," said Mrs. Jerome, who had been forbidden ever to touch fried foods by her doctor.

"I'll tell her about Beau after she's had her breakfast in peace," thought Sally, as she watched a lump of butter sizzle in the frying pan.

It was while she was toasting a piece of bread to screve with the egg that she heard Millie's voice in a wild scream, coming from the sitting room.

"Sally! Sally! Hurry up! Oh, hurry up!" she called, and Sally dropped the toast and ran.

Mrs. Jerome had fainted in her chair, and Millie was crying wildly and trying to prop her up against her pillows. On the floor at her feet lay the spilled contents of the breakfast tray. A little pool of coffee was fast darkening the rose pattern of the rug.

"What happened?" asked Sally, taking one look and then rushing back to the kitchen for cold water. Mrs. Jerome had fainted before, and she knew just how to go about reviving her.

Millie's voice, high and excited for once, followed her: "I was asking her what she thought about Beau eloping with Mabel last night, and she threw up her hands all of a sudden, and just keeled over. I never saw anything happen so fast in my life!"

"You shouldn't have said a word to her!" scolded Sally, dashing the water into her mother's face, handful by handful. "I was going to take my time, and break it to her gently—"

"That's just the trouble!" Millie broke in snappily. "You baby her so that she can't stand anything! You keep her wrapped in cotton-wool and there's no reason for it! She's just as strong as you and me—or stronger!"

"Hush!" Sally put her finger to her lips, for her mother was stirring now. Her eyes fluttered open and her lips moved as she tried to say something.

"Beau—" she whispered, and then her plump face wrinkled and she began to cry piteously. Sally put her arms around her and pressed her mother's cheek against her shoulder.

"Now, now, mother, don't cry," she murmured, soothing her mother as she had comforted her and soothed her a hundred times before when things had gone wrong. "Beau's old enough to get married. Surely you want him to live a normal man's life and have a wife, don't you?"

"Yes, but not that rag doll of a Mabel!" wept Mrs. Jerome, who had all sorts of unkind names for Mabel. "What good will she ever be to him, I'd like to know? . . . She doesn't even air her own bed when she's here in this house!"

"She can make as good a living as he can, though," Sally reminded her quietly. "And, after all, that's the kind of wife that Beau needs. He never would support a girl who stayed at home, and you know it, Mother."

"I w-w-won't have you talking about him!" sobbed Mrs. Jerome. "Beau's a good boy. He's a good boy."

"Yes, he is—like ice!" It was Millie who said this, standing in the middle of the room in her pink mull nightgown and her little pink kid bedroom slippers. "You ask Sally about the bad checks he's been passing. You ought to be glad to get rid of him. That's what!"

"WILL YOU BE STILL!" Sally's voice shook as she spoke, and her face went white with fury.

"What's the big idea?" she demanded wrathfully. "There's no need for mother to know about

Wedding Bells Peal As Prisoner Is Freed On Bail

Wedding bells, muffled today when the bridegroom, Stanley Solick, of 1420 Page street, was arraigned in Central Police Court for stealing $5, rang loudly again when Magistrate George H. England released Solick under bail, pending final decision.

Felix Antoniewich, of 176 Sixteenth street, accused Solick of the theft. But Solick produced a marriage license and said this was to be his wedding day. Released, he hurried to get his bride.

Golf Courses Should Be Life Preservers For Golfers—Will

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Bob Jones, Atlanta, Ga.: Bobby, you can be the means of saving a lot of human lives. The big problem of aviation is having emergency places to land. Now you insist on having one fairway long enough and level enough to land a plane on, all marked with crosses to show it. Every golf club should be patriotic and humane enough to do this. Think what it would mean to an aviator with a missing engine to know that every golf course was a life preserver. If they don't do this voluntarily the government will make 'em do it some day. Now all you got to do, Bobby, is to say you won't play on a course that won't go to that much expense for their country and their fellow man. If you do this you will do as much for aviation as Lindbergh.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Mrs. Elsie Jane Ernest, 88, born in Cambria county, died Wednesday, at the Ladies G. A. R. Home at Hawkins. She was the widow of Christian Ernest and leaves a daughter, Mrs. George B. Snyder, of 7324 Kelly street.

STUART RESIGNATION RUMOR IS DENIED

Reports that James J. Stuart, state secretary of highways, was considering resigning were vigorously denied today. Mr. Stewart, it was learned, has told Gov. Fisher and State Chairman W. L. Mellon that he would remain in office. Mr. Stuart is at his summer home in Gloucester, Mass.

ROBBERS TAKE MONEY FROM STORE ICE BOX

Twenty-two dollars, hidden in an ice box in the Huey & Mathews store at 442 South Highland avenue, was taken by robbers who broke down the rear door last night, it was reported to city detectives this morning. Harry Lander, manager of the store, discovered the robbery when he opened the place today. Nothing else was disturbed.

WILL STATE POLICE GET THEIR MAN?

GREENSBURG, Aug. 31.—Patched for an instant—an instant as fleet and stirring as a pistol shot—against a sea of riotous angry faces, the face of a murderer is defying the proudest tradition of the Pennsylvania State Police—

Defying an inexorable fate—for in the 22 years history of the state police no murderer of a trooper has escaped justice until now. Failure to find an exact identification of the slayer of Private John A. Downey, a slayer who fired from the anonymity of a mob near Chestwick, August 22, has given to this man odds against capture, odds against tradition, against having writ across his brow the mark of capture, which is traditionally the mark of the state police.

Nine members of the Pennsylvania state police have been slain on duty. All the killers—all but one—have met justice.

Here in the barracks where Downey's comrades live, there is realization that tradition is challenged. Troopers, rookies alike, sense the challenge. It is accepted.

There are only slim clues to the slayer. These are being followed exactingly, and there are no thoughts of failure.

Capt. Thomas J. McLaughlin, veteran commander of Troop A, one of the first Pennsylvania troopers, knows the meaning of tradition. It was Capt. McLaughlin, among a handful of other troopers, who fired into the group which had shot down Troopers John Williams and Jack Smith in the McKees Rocks riot of August 22, 1909. Returning the fire of the mob, Capt. McLaughlin and his comrades avenged at once the deaths of Williams and Smith. An undetermined number of men among the rioters was killed, and there was assurance on the grim faces of the policemen as they subdued the remainder that the slayers of Williams and Smith had been punished.

It was Capt. McLaughlin again who "got his man" when he trailed the murderer of Trooper John F. Durgin from Pennsylvania into Ohio and through the South to Alabama. Walter Richardson, a Negro, wanted for a minor crime, had killed Durgin. The killing took place in Ohio, where Durgin had trailed him. McLaughlin then took up the chase. Richardson was brought back to Ohio, tried and sentenced to die.

Capt. McLaughlin recalls these things and speaks bitterly of the death of Downey.

"There—that's Downey's horse," the captain tells you. "Andy—Andy seems to sense that Downey's not coming back." The captain's voice falters. "And Trooper—" (Trooper's a dog but he's a big part of Troop A)—"Trooper misses Downey, too. They used to romp together. Yes, we all miss him."

Other members of A Troop recall the vengeance of the troopers on other slayers of their comrades. The force was only a year old when Privates J. W. Henry and F. A. Zehringer were shot from the windows of a house which lawbreakers had barricaded in New Florence, Jefferson county.

The troopers dynamited the house, and the slayers, with other members of the gang, were killed.

Private Timothy Kelleher was stabbed to death by Salvatore Carrito and Stepano Porcello in a fight in Berks county, September, 1907. Carrito was hanged, and Porcello was convicted of manslaughter.

In April, 1913, Private Andrew Camp was killed in Indiana county by Tony Curato, who was captured and convicted of second degree murder. Curato was a highwayman.

Private Francis L. Haley was shot to death on the Lincoln Highway by Philip A. Hartman, who had robbed an Adams county bank, in October, 1924. Haley, on a motorcycle, tried to stop Hartman, who was in an automobile. Hartman fired before the trooper could protect himself. Hartman was captured and is awaiting sentence.

In the barracks room here, circling the walls are the photographs of the men slain on duty. Downey's has just been added. It holds the center of the group.

FREE TO COME BACK

WARREN T. M'CRAY

When Warren T. McCray, former governor of Indiana, paroled from Federal prison at Atlanta yesterday, returns to Indiana tomorrow, he will be free, as far as the Indiana courts are concerned, to begin the battle to regain his fortune and good name. Every one of the many indictments against him for violating the Indiana banking laws and using the mails to defraud has been quashed. McCray has said that he means to "make good and pay."

DOGS BITE TWO SOUTH SIDERS

Two persons were bitten by dogs and a supposedly mad dog was shot on the South Side last night. Lawrence Killeen, 22, of 236 Plymouth street, was bitten on the left knee, and William Doerfner, 10, of 20 Holt street, on the left shoulder. In each case the dog was ordered tied up. Patrolman John Seibert shot a dog owned by William Trenter, of 832 Waldbridge street, when it was found frothing at the mouth in the basement of the home of Mrs. G. S. Knapp, of 802 Kerr avenue.

Nicholas Chirigos, 4, of 6343 Marchand street, is receiving anti-rabies treatment in the West Penn hospital. A dog which bit him Saturday was mad, it has been determined.

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

those checks! . . . It's all right Mother. Beau was overdrawn at the bank last week, that's all." She glared at Millie, and Millie glared back at her.

There is no quarrel so bitter as the quarrel between two sisters. That is one of life's most puzzling facts.

Sally and Millie were always having disagreements. They had had them since their mud-pie days, and it had always been Sally who spoke the first pleasant word. Millie was as stubborn as a mule, for all her outward softness.

It was Sally who spoke the first word now. "Go and get Mother's smelling salts, Millie," she said, her eyes losing their blue fire. "And let's forget all this. If there's ever a time when we ought to stick together, it's now—when we're in trouble."

"Trouble?" echoed Mrs. Jerome. "I know you're keeping something from me—"

She would have burst into tears once more, but at that moment there came a sound of feet on the stairs outside and a quick, nervous tapping came at the door.

"That's your Aunt Emily!" she cried. "I forgot that she was coming at 9 o'clock to take me out to her house for the day."

Every now and then Aunt Emily asked Mrs. Jerome to spend a whole day with her.

"It gives you a rest," she had once explained to Sally. "It must be terrible to listen to her complain all the time. . . . After I've had her on my hands for a few hours I'm fit for the lunatic asylum!

Her face was grim and unsmiling now, as she stalked into the room. It was plain that the prospect of a Sunday with her sister-in-law was not cheering her up the least bit.

"What's happened now?" she asked, looking from Mrs. Jerome's tear-stained face to the broken cup and the coffee stain on the floor.

It was Millie who answered, running into the room with the green bottle of smelling salts in her hands. She poked it under her mother's nose, and giggled as she spoke.

"Mother had a fit because Beau's eloped with Mabel—a fainting fit, I mean, ofcourse," she said impudently. "That's the only kind she's ever had, so far—"

"First my husband, and now my son! They've both deserted me!" wailed Mrs. Jerome, and tears sprang to her eyes again.

"Don't be a fool, Clara Margaretta!" snapped Aunt Emily, who never used Mrs. Jerome's full name unless she wanted to be extra-impressive. "You ought to thank your lucky stars that he's gone! He's lived on you women long enough, it seems to me. Let Mabel support him for a while and see how she likes it! It won't last long!"

She turned to Sally. "Help me get your mother into her clothes!" she cried. "I'll take her home and keep her there until she gets over this! She's too much for you. You look ready to drop."

"I'm not, though. I feel like a billion," fibbed Sally, white-lipped and heavy-eyed as she slipped her arms under her mother's big shoulders and helped her to her feet.

"Don't trouble yourselves with me. I can dress myself!" Mrs. Jerome sniffed, and sailed out of the room like a grand-duchess. It was plain that she was angry with all of them.

"She's hurt now because she thinks she's a bother to us," mourned Sally, looking after her with unhappy eyes.

"Well, she IS a bother, and it's time she knew it!" replied Millie, and her pink lips came together with a snap.

CHAPTER XXI.

MRS. JEROME lumbered away to get dressed, and Millie went back to bed. She always stayed in bed until noon on Sundays.

"I'll have my coffee in my room if you don't mind, Honey Chile," she called to Sally in a voice that dripped with sweetness, "and bring along the Sunday paper, too, when you get it picked up."

"My soul! You aren't really going to do it for her, are you?" Aunt Emily gasped in astonishment as Sally bent to pick up the pages that Mrs. Jerome had scattered all over the carpet. "She's able to do a few things for herself, I should think! Why do you wait on her, hand, foot and finger?"

"Why not?" asked Sally with a shrug of her pretty shoulders. "The paper's got to be picked up sooner or later, anyway. And it's just as easy to carry the coffeepot into the bedroom as it is to set it on the dining room table."

Miss Jerome gave her a long searching look with her dark eyes that moved so quickly and saw so many things that they were not supposed to see.

"Sally, you're a fool to work for these people the way you do," she said finally. "I did it for my family all my life, and what thanks did I get for it, 'd like to know? Not one bit, and you won't either! They'll just work you to pieces, and when you're worn out they'll find somebody else they can treat the same way!"

She stopped for a second to let that sink in, and then went briskly on:

"I suppose now that Beau's married, you'll have one more person to fetch and carry for around here. He'll bring his wife home to live, won't he?"

Sally shot a terrified glance at her aunt. . . . There was a thought! Suppose Beau did bring Mabel here to the flat at the end of their honeymoon? . . . Beau, who never had paid his own way at home, and certainly never would pay Mabel's way either.

"Oh, you don't think they expect to come here, do you?" she asked anxiously, and Aunt Emily gave a short bark of laughter.

"Of course they'll come here!" said she; "You don't expect them to do anything else, do you? What other place have they to go to? They'll come here sure as fate, so you'd better get ready for them!"

The girl shook her head, and she began to pick up the bits of broken cup and saucer from the carpet under her mother's chair.

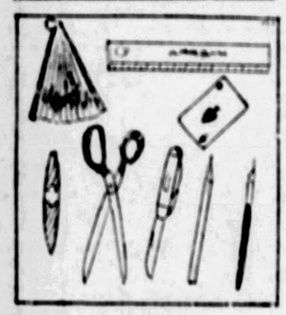
TEASERS



AN OBJECT LESSON

There are eight objects in this picture today.

Study the picture for less than half a minute.

Then lay the drawing aside and try to name or write down the eight objects correctly.

YESTERDAY'S TEASER

The flags were: 1, Cuba; 2, Uruguay; 3, Switzerland; 4, Norway; 5, Panama; 6, Greece.

To name all 6, exceptional; 5, very good; 4, good; 3, average; 2, fair; 1, poor.

(Copyright by Public Ledger.)

WHAT'S the ANSWER?

1. What are the cartoons of Raphael?
2. Who was Armand Jean Duplessis?
3. Why do we see stars when we bump our heads?
4. Who are the Magyars?
5. To whom do we owe our national motto "E Pluribus Unum?"
6. What is a Sybarite?
7. What is said to be the origin of the word "newspaper?"
8. Why is the sky blue?
9. Why do onions make our eyes water?
10. What were the Ireland forgeries?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions:

1. After Waterloo, Napoleon boarded an English ship as the guest of England. But he was treated as a prisoner. As he went on the ship which was to take him to St. Helena, he exclaimed, "Perfidious Albion!" Albion is an old name for England.

2. Mary Magdalene, or Mary Magdala, was so named from the place of her birth, on the sea of Galilee.

3. Eyelashes serve the purpose of keeping things out of the eyes.

4. We get our alphabet from the Romans, who took it from the Greeks, who in turn took it from the Phoenicians, who invented it.

5. The Colosseum at Rome was named for the colossal statue of the Emperor Nero which stood near by.

6. A snowflake falls faster than a raindrop because the resistance of the air is greater. A snowflake is not compact, as is a raindrop, and the friction of the air more easily counteracts its weight.

7. When one thinks of Spenser, one thinks of his masterpiece, the "Faerie Queene."

8. The Three Fates were Clotho, Lachesis and Atropos.

9. Beatrice Cenci was a beautiful Italian girl who was executed for the murder of her father, although it seems probable that she was innocent. There is a famous portrait of her by Guido Reni.

10. The oriflamme was a red silk banner mounted on a gold staff. In 1119 is was used as the national banner of France. When it was displayed in war, it indicated that no quarter would be given.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm POSitively WHIFFling and BURBling with JOY at this point, because I mean you actually should have HEARD the way I paid Arab BACK for that dirty CRACK he handed NOIsy yesterday. It was honestly too exCRUciating because we were sort of sitting CASarally together in the old HAMmock, and in a position like THAT, my dear, I simply aDORE to get Arab all hot and BOTHered by disCUSSing with him about LOVE, so I casually inQUIRED if he didn't think LOVE was WONderful and, my dear, he put on this terribly CYNical and soPHIStIcated AIR of his and said yes he did NOT—he thought love was a MESS—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean I think it is SIMply KILLing the way he acts when you talk about LOVE with him, because you can just SEE he is terribly self-conscIENtious about it, because girls have practicably ALways given him the RAZZ. Well, ANYways, my dear, he sort of went ON to say he thought LOVE was all WET because he said he LOOKED upon it as a conTAgious disEASE, so, my dear, I said not to WORry because nobody would ever CATCH it from HIM! Well, HONestly, he was PRACtically ready to ROLL over and BUTter himself with disMAY because I mean I am conVINCED that ARab considers himself POSitively irreSIStible—I mean I ACtually AM!"

Quicksands of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

A New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

NOEL VERITZEN'S eyes were so feverishly bright as he told me what he had discovered of Jack Leslie's nefarious plot against the masked dancer that I wondered for an instant if his love for the girl and his jealousy against the night club entertainer might not have turned his brain. Then as I remembered the epithet of the "capering cockroach," which Dicky had applied to young Leslie, and also recalled Lillian's estimate of the night club dancer, I realized that the man, in all probability, was capable of any infamy. Self-interest whispered to me also that exposure of Leslie as young Veritzen no doubt contemplated would be a most salutary piece of knowledge for Mary Harrison if she ever showed any further interest in the cabaret entertainer.

"How can I best help you?" I asked my excited young guest quietly as his voice trailed off into exhaustion while telling me of Leslie's plan.

He flashed me a grateful glance. "Will you come with me to Leslie's apartment the night he takes the dancer there?" he asked, "and then—I know it is a great deal to ask—but will you bring her home with you afterward? I know it is a great deal to ask, but I do not believe you will be sorry."

Again that odd glance of his, again that queer impression of mine as of something kept back.

"I suppose you are wondering why I do not ask Mrs. Underwood this favor," he hurried on, "as she is an old friend. I have asked her to be at Leslie's apartment, but—she lives in a hotel—you know, and I think the little dancer will need the shelter of a real home that night."

"She shall have it," I said impetuously. "I will do everything in my power to help you. Just let me know the time and I will drop everything to help you. But why do you take the risk of letting the girl go to the apartment with Leslie? Why do you not warn her beforehand?"

He shook his head dolefully.

"I have warned her about Leslie when I could get near her," he said, "but she will not listen. She must find out what he really is. But everything is arranged. No harm can come to her."

He rose abruptly, crossed to me and bent over my hands again.

"Your gracious promise has removed my last anxiety," he said. "But suppose you should not be at home upon the evening I need you?"

"You will not need me before 10 in the evening, will you?"

"Not before midnight."

"I rarely am out after that hour," I said, smiling, "and I shall make it a point to be at home every night until you call me."

He thanked me fervently, if somewhat inarticulately, and went away, having done me, without knowing it, the greatest service possible. He had given me a topic of thought so interesting that I would be able to divert my mind from Dicky's inexplicable and terrifying conduct.

There were several odd angles of Noel Veritzen's story which puzzled me. Why, for instance, had he asked me to help him? I knew that Lillian had been his friend for years. Surely she, a host in herself, was all that he needed for any emergency. His reason for asking shelter for the dancer in my home, instead of Lillian's suite at her hotel, also appeared of thin texture, indeed, without the boy's earnest words to give it weight.

But I had promised, and my imagination, my love of adventure and my protective instinct combined to make me eager for the boy's summons. Only one thing marred my thrilled expectancy, the reflection that Noel Veritzen was so wrapped up in his infatuation for the masked dancer that he would have but little time or inclination for the companionship with Mary, upon which Lillian and I had counted to counteract the influence of Jack Leslie.

I worked steadily all the afternoon to such good purpose that at 5 o'clock my desk was clear. I was just about to go up to the next floor for a romp with Junior when Kate brought me a telegram addressed to Dicky.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

A Decent Girl

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a constant reader of your columns and I saw "A Decent Fellow" letter. I am very glad to know that there is at least one fellow out of a hundred that has such high ideals. I cannot understand why girls indulge in these low down habits because a fellow might tell you it is alright, but he absolutely does not mean it. I can gladly say I never smoked or drank in my life. I am 19 years of age, am very popular with the male set, also the female set. I have everything any girl's heart desires and that is good health, wonderful parents, good position and good looks. I would very much like to meet someone like "A Decent Fellow." I dance, drive a big car, indulge in all kinds of sports, such as tennis, swimming, picnics and everything like that. I do not blame "A Decent Fellow" for not wanting a girl that indulged in smoking and drinking for a wife. I am glad I had this wonderful opportunity of commenting on his letter. Hoping for him to reinvent on mine, I am,

"A DECENT GIRL."

And I am very glad you feel as you do toward those things, my dear.

Bee

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been a silent reader of your column for a good while now and have at last come for your advice. I met a fellow about three months ago at a party. Since then we have seen each other often and on several occasions he has taken me home from social activities at which he and I have both been present. As there is at least six years' difference in our ages, he considers me as a child instead of a young lady. That is where the trouble comes in, as I'll admit I'm quite in love with him. The evening of the party, when we were introduced, he escorted me home, much to the dissatisfaction of the boy who had taken me. This was an unladylike thing for me to do, but I was so swept off my feet with my newly-acquainted friend that I lost most of my senses that night. We didn't go home right away but went for a spin in the park. He kissed me a good many times on our way back and by the time I reached home I was thoroughly disgusted and I told him so. The next day, however, my love for him returned and with that came regret for what I had said. The next time I saw him he was very cheerful and he apologized to me. I have seen him a good many times since that but he is always the same cheerful, unassuming boy who never asks me out or asks to come to see me and this is strange because he always felt hurt if he didn't have at least one date with me every week. But he always seems very glad to see me. Now, Miss Gale, he treats me just like a child and do you suppose it is because I acted peeved when he kissed me or because there is such a difference in our ages? I am very anxious to know if he cares for me, as I have never met a boy who has such clean, high ideals as his, or who is more sincere. I have thought of asking him to come over to see me some evening, but would you in this case, Miss Gale?. Wishing you the best of luck, I remain BEE.

It is your privilege to invite him to call, of course, my dear, but don't let him consider such an invitation as evidence that you have changed your mind concerning kissing. You were quite right in feeling disgusted with yourself. I don't blame you.

Puzzled

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am coming to ask your advice concerning a matter which seems difficult to me and yet may seem simple to you. One day during school a boy asked me to lay him try on my ring. I did and then forgot about it for a week or so. When I asked him about it he wouldn't give it to me. I didn't worry about it until my mother questioned me concerning its whereabouts. One day after the school term was over I saw him and asked about it. He said he had given it to another boy whom I like real well. I cannot find out if this is the truth because I never spoke to this boy, although I went to school with him for a year. Miss Gale, I would like to become friends with this boy and when I go to speak I just can't. I talk to other boys and go to parties and school dances with them, but my mother says I am too young to have dates with boys and I agree with her. I have the same opinion as you have about smoking, drinking and petting. I wish you all the happiness and success in the world. I am,

PUZZLED.

This boy has behaved abominably about your ring, and you should demand that he get it back for you. However, if you have gone to school with the other boy, it might do no harm to question him concerning the truth of the matter. I am very glad you agree with me, my dear.

Moonbeam Dreamer

DEAR MISS GALE:

Again I enter your column for advice. I am going on 19 Miss Gale and am engaged to a fellow 24. Is there too much difference in our ages? When I first met the boy, which was a year and a half ago, he used to run around and drink a good bit. But now he hasn't had a drink for 14 months. Do you think that after we are married he will start drinking again? He promised me he would never touch it again, but Miss Gale he has broken other little promises that did not amount to much. I love this boy and could not give him up. Don't you think that after we are married I will have more influence over him. Wishing you lots of luck and happiness, I am,

MOONBEAM DREAMER.

I doubt very much if you will have more influence over him after you are married than you have now. You are too young to marry now, however, so give him a couple more years to prove his sincerity.

Sunshine

FULLY ripened on the trees in California sunshine—dried under the direct rays of the sun—prunes have all of the health, all of the fruit sugar that Nature can bestow—nearly three times the food value and health value of most fruits. You need them these hot days.

Green Corn Pudding

Grate the corn from twelve ears. Add four beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, a little salt, pepper, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and three cupfuls of rich milk or light cream. Turn into a buttered pudding dish, sprinkle with dry crumbs, then with a little grated American cheese and bake for about three-quarters of an hour. Serve as a luncheon dish.

Corn Fritters

Grate the corn from twelve ears. Make a batter with a half cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of soft butter and four beaten eggs. Add the corn and mix smoothly, then drop by spoonfuls into hot fat and fry a delicate brown.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

MANY a person has been made unhappy by the fear of blindness. Perhaps mother, or grandfather, or a more distant relative had cataract, glaucoma, optic nerve atrophy, or some other dreadful eye trouble. The story of blindness has been repeated in the family circle since childhood.

DR COPELAND

It is not uncommon for any grown person, especially a well-fed one, to have black spots, or a thread of blackness in the vision of one eye. On looking at the sky, the ceiling of the room, or, on a bright day, the cement sidewalk, scurrying spots are seen.

Hardly a day passes in the life of a busy doctor but somebody asks about this symptom. No matter how casually the question is put, back of it is a person who is hanging on every word of the reply. Back of it is a trusting soul, worried by the thought of blindness.

Of course, this symptom may really be of consequence. In rare instances it may indicate something serious. But in the majority, the vast majority, of instances, it has no relationship whatever to blindness.

People who overeat, underexercise, get unduly tired, or who strain their eyes, may have floating specks or spots. They have a meaning, of course, but rest assured that blindness is not the thing to be feared.

There are certain kidney and blood troubles, liver complaints and intestinal trouble that produce eye symptoms. On this account it is a good idea to take floating spots as a suggestion from kindly nature to have your eyes examined, the urine tested and a general medical inspection.

Just as the railroads place at the railroad crossings the warning sign—"Stop! Look! Listen!"—so you should take a symptom like this. It is a hint which, if heeded, will save you from danger. It is no more dangerous in and of itself than the crossing sign is, but if its warning is disregarded, you may invite trouble.

Many persons suffer from eyestrain who hardly realize it. It isn't necessary to have poor sight to prove that you are straining your precious eyes. The vision may be perfect and yet it may be good at the expense of a tremendous amount of effort.

There are defective eyes which, by damaging strain of the focusing muscles, can be made to serve. Great as the strain is, it is applied without any realization on the part of the victim that he is doing what he shouldn't do.

Lots of folks need glasses who don't know it. Because they can see everything, they can't believe anything is wrong with the eyes. Headache, smarting eyes, red lids, and spots before the eyes are a few symptoms of eyestrain.

Lack of exercise, rich food, late hours and neglected constipation may create no earlier symptoms than eye specks. But this is a signal worth heeding. If disregarded, other and more painful symptoms will develop.

Don't be scared by eye spots, but do be sensible about them. Heed the warning and have yourself put in trim.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WITH A DASH OF TOBASCO.

When a woman without sense of humor marries a man without a sense of honor, Satan chuckles—and takes a holiday.

The road to success would be shorter for most men, if it were not so full of tempting little sentimental detours.

* * *

No woman really understands a man until she has catered to his palate and guarded his digestion for a few years, and learned that his love is not necessarily dead every time his emotions go into a state of coma.

HELEN ROWLAND

There are books on how to "Eat and Grow Thin," "Drink and Be Sober," and "Live and Stay Young;" but life will never be perfect until somebody can write convincingly on how to "Marry and Remain a Bachelor."

* * *

Alas, it costs such a lot of money for a girl to be simply and fashionably unclothed, this season!

* * *

A man never realizes how hard the world is, until he bumps into the right girl, falls in love, and plunges into marriage.

From the flapper's viewpoint, a husband is just something that cramps your style, and that you have to be constantly explaining and apologizing for—like an umbrella or a summer cold.

* * *

Some honeymoon couples leave most of their romance behind in the summer hotel, along with the rice and their tooth-brushes.

* * *

I had a little husband—
I thought him rather nice;
But all he ever gave me
Was a lot of free advice!

You are practically demode if you don't possess a knee bracelet. At least, according to those who sell those glittering baubles. Ritzy Rosey and Jingles seem to be waiting for someone. It must be Dick, who will undoubtedly approve of Ritzy's choice.

Creamed Eggs

Boil 6 eggs hard. Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add ¼ pound cheese, cut small. When melted, add 1 tablespoon flour, then very slowly add 1 pint milk. Cook until thick and smooth. Add eggs chopped coarsely; season with paprika or red pepper. Serve on buttered toast.

Indian Curry

Cut chicken into small slices, add little water, 1 onion and 2 tomatoes (canned or fresh), chopped fine, then season with salt and pepper. When onion is cooked, skim out meat and mix 1 dessertspoon curry powder, 2 dessertspoons flour. Stir this into gravy, cook 5 minutes, return meat to kettle, let come to boil; serve with border dry cooked rice.

Use the Fireless

If you have a fireless cooker you can make ice cream without a freezer. Pack it with ice and salt at the bottom, placing cooker vessel containing the custard on top of the ice and packing ice and salt around sides and top. Then close the cooker. Open it every fifteen minutes, removing the ice from the top and stirring the mixture. Freeze it until it is of the desired consistency. This works on the principle of a vacuum freezer and is very good for freezing sherbets and ices as well as ice cream.

Stomach Troubles That Are Dangerous (CUT THIS OUT)

Some forms of stomach trouble, if neglected, often lead to dangerous conditions—ulcers or cancers—then, a surgical operation is about the only hope.

For this reason, even the most simple stomach ailments should be given prompt and careful attention. So, don't neglect acid stomach, sourness, gas or bloating! And don't waste time with unknown or unreliable treatments. At the very first signs of distress, go to any good drug store and obtain a few cents' worth of pure Bisurated Magnesia. This special Magnesia Compound is safe and pleasant to take—quickly, almost instantly, effective and does not act as a laxative. Be sure and ask for BISURATED Magnesia for stomach troubles only.

CHIC CHERIE

A Variety of Suits.

LATEST FASHIONS

Cherie was going to look at all the Fall suits in town today and come to a decision as to what kind she wanted for herself, but here she is! Window shopping, still. Cherie's dress has fullness on one side and long slanting lines from shoulder to hipline just to prove it's really new.

Of course, if it's a two-piece suit she wants, this sport suit will do very well. It's a tweed knit affair with a dress that looks like a blouse and skirt. The sport ensemble has a light brown full length coat and a dress whose skirt matches. Both of these have straight tailored lines, as sport clothes do this Fall.

This is a suit of a different color—also kind. It's an afternoon suit for formal wear with a dress of black velvet and white georgette. The skirt has an irregular hemline, as is proper, and the coat drapes, too, on one side. The question is, could she possibly do it justice if she bought it?

This is certainly the suit for Cherie. It has a flaring skirt to its frock, a flaring coat, a standing collar, a one-sided effect and it's made of gray kasha. It will be Cherie's no later than nine o'clock tomorrow, that is, if she recovers from her disgust that stores WILL close at five o'clock!

Should Love Be Independent?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage

THERE is a fine ring to the word "independence." Most of us rejoice because we live in a land where every citizen has the right to freedom and independence, within the law he has helped to create.

But there is always law, limiting independence. Freedom without control is license—a destructive quality. This truth holds in romance as well as every other phase of life.

Love that is tolerant and understanding, rejoices in freedom and independence—up to a certain point. But love also places us under obligations which limit our freedom and independence. Mothers can never be entirely free. A husband is not free. He has the responsibility of supporting his family. A wife is sometimes a veritable slave to the needs of her household.

There is a price to be paid for everything worth while in life. And very often that price is restricted freedom. Yet we cheerfully pay the price of life's precious gifts, including the gift of love.

It is well to cultivate a sense of values, which will prevent sacrificing love for the sake of a petty and paltry sense of independence, which may be after all egoism.

A wise, elderly friend of mine, an officer in a large corporation, who looks on the human drama about him with the kindly wisdom well-lived years bring, happened to mention to me the other day while we were chatting, his secretary, in whom I also am interested.

"I wish you could help her," he said. "She is unhappy and far too proud to let any one guess how really unhappy she is.

"About three years ago," he went on, "I noticed she was becoming fond of a fine young man from another department—one who has great promise and is bound to advance in his work.

"I was pleased, for I liked both young people and take great pleasure in watching little dramas and romances of our big corporation as they unfold.

"For a while all went well. I could see the two really cared for each other, and I expected to be told of their engagement almost any day.

"Then, suddenly, the companionship came to an end. My secretary said nothing. But I noticed she sometimes came to work with red eyes as though from hours of sleepless grief and weeping.

"Knowing her as well as I do, I realize that her shortcoming is an overwhelming sense of pride and independence. If she differed with a friend, or became hurt or angry, she would let this independent spirit rule her without stopping to consider. In a tiff she probably sent away the young man who cared for her. Perhaps she told him she was through in such clear terms he had no choice but to accept her ultimatum. She would be likely to secretly eat her heart out for him, although her false pride and independence would not allow her to admit herself hasty or in the wrong.

"For awhile her former sweetheart seemed grave and depressed. But of late he has been going about with another young woman and I received, just this last week, an invitation to their wedding."

It is a tragedy of young romance that so many girls—and young men also, for that matter—are inclined to be "quick on the trigger" when little tiffs and differences of opinion arise.

Very often a quarrel over nothing at all has ended a friendship which, in the natural course of events, would grow very dear and precious and lead to successful marriage.

Married couples also have tiffs and differences. Human beings cannot be expected to always live in amiable mood. But these flare-ups, as a rule, do not lead to serious consequences and are quickly completely forgotten. This is because married couples usually learn from experience sufficient self-discipline and self-control to curb the spirit of undue independence and snap judgment.

"Buel and I often drove a long way past wonderful camping sites," laughed my friend Alice, in describing her motor trip with her husband across the continent, "because we could not agree on the best place to camp for the night. Sometimes it grew so late we were obliged to compromise on a site far less inviting than any we had passed."

The poise of a well-balanced married couple enables them to disagree without violent anger, to give and take good-humoredly. The time may come when you will feel tempted to tell your sweetheart in no uncertain terms exactly what you think of something he has done or failed to do. But he is only human—so are you. Curb that independent spirit of yours until you have had time to think things over calmly—and to forget your quick, reckless flash of temper.

Team work is essential to happy marriage. Team work calls for fair-minded tolerance and self-control, rather than extreme independence. Why not practice in your everyday associations with your family and casual friends, pleasant control of an independent spirit, which will help you win the man of your choice and retain his companionship and interested affection throughout the years.

Reducing or Gaining Weight by Swimming.

SWIMMING can reduce the overweight by eliminating the excess of fatty tissue and building up firm, healthy, supple muscles in place of it. It can also gradually fill out and develop the lean underweight by building up muscles. Of course, like any other exercise, nothing can be accomplished without sustained effort. Those who expect amazing results from an occasional few minutes of idle standing around in a swimming pool or lake are always disappointed, but any one who is sufficiently in earnest to work faithfully and intelligently may count on success. The amount of work to be done will depend on the object in view, whether it is reducing, building up, keeping fit, training for competition, lifesaving, exhibitions, etc., and upon the strength, condition and ability of the individual.

Swimming strokes may be divided into two distinct types—the lazy, restful ones and the vigorous, fast ones. The first type of stroke should be avoided by the person who wishes to reduce. A restful stroke is excellent for nervous, high-strung women who feel that they cannot relax, and for long-distance swimming. The woman with a dry skin that chills easily will derive great benefit from open-air swimming with a restful stroke on warm, sunny days. One cannot prescribe the same type of strokes for all women. Some persons who swim a great deal become fat and heavy because they use the wrong kind of strokes for their type, or use the right stroke in the wrong way.

A leisurely crawl has been known to place a layer of firm, healthy flesh on thin persons who have practiced it faithfully; while the same movements done with vim and energy have worn away unsightly fat from overweights. The extraordinary deep breathing that crawl swimmers are compelled to do explains why that stroke will tear down dangerous internal fat. It should be remembered also that it is far less strain on the heart to send blood through the body of a swimmer because of his prone position than it is to stimulate the circulation through a person engaged in any other sport. This makes it safer to lose weight by swimming exercises than by any other ways.

Some women derive much more benefit from swimming than others. The following types are those that I have found especially helped by regular swimming: The sedentary worker, the woman with thin upper arms, flat chest, round shoulders; the woman whose pelvic organs are prolapsed, antiverted or retroflexed; the short-winded woman whose breathing muscles are so pressed with fatty accumulations that exercise is very hard; the woman whose complexion is muddy, sallow or too oily; the attenuated, angular woman who has neither muscles or fat to cover her bones.

One fact that is slightly, if at all, understood by many physical culturists is that swimming enlarges the lower lung cells and that upon action starting in them a corresponding action must be started in the brain cells to keep pace. Thus new energizing forces are released in the woman who swims regularly, which she would have missed had she not taken up swimming.

Marmalade Tarts

One cup flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, milk. Sift dry ingredients together; add butter and rub in very lightly then add milk enough to hold together. Roll out quite thin; brush shallow muffin pan with little melted butter, line with dough, put spoonful any kind of marmalade, jam or fruit butter in pan. Place very narrow strip dough criss-cross over top; brush with milk, bake in quick, hot oven 12 to 15 minutes.

Uses for Sandpaper

A package of assorted sandpaper is used by one housewife in numerous ways. She says: "Now that canning time is here and the new tops are hard to tighten, I find a piece of sandpaper placed over the top and used as a cloth a great aid. It does not slip. It is also good for sticky irons. Rub the iron over it a few times and the iron will become shiny and smooth. I use a fine grade to clean the brown stains on enamel ware and glass baking dishes."

WALLY DISCUSSES SQUAD

WITH JAMES J. LONG

Picture snapped as neither principal was aware the photographer was "shooting" them shows Coach Walter P. Steffen of the Carnegie Tech football squad discussing the Plaid's prospects for the season with James J. Long of the Sun-Telegraph sports staff, on the Tech practice field. Long's story appears below.

BALL CARRYING BACKS, TECH'S CRYING NEED

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Coach Steffen Up Against It for Man To Replace Donohoe and Also Will Miss Yoder and Mefort, Along With Manby and Goodwin—Squad Lacks Weight — Prospects Are Fair.

(NOTE.—This is the first of a series of interviews with the local college football coaches on their outlook for the season. Interviews with Coaches Jock Sutherland of Pitt and Elmer Layden of Duquesne University will follow.)

WANTED—Ball-carrying backs. That's the crying need in football at Carnegie Tech this year. It shaped up as the outstanding requirement when Coach Wally Steffen led his Skibo squad onto the field for the first practice session of the season on Monday, and it will continue to be the main essential until the Chicago jurist finds and develops men of the right caliber for the vacant places.

Otherwise, the prospects at this early stage are as bright as could be desired, even though among the new men trying for the varsity team there are few of the big or husky type. The squad as a whole is rather below the college average in weight, and when you consider the quality of the material that the Tartans have lost and the tough nature of the schedule that confronts them, it would appear that the Plaid is likely to have a strenuous contract on its hands to live up to the reputation it made last year when it climbed to the peak of football glory by crushing mighty Notre Dame under a score of 19 to 0.

But one thing that you can't take away from Carnegie Tech is her spirit, a spirit for which the Schenley Park school is noted throughout the football world and which is unsurpassed anywhere in the country. That spirit, with the coaching skill of Judge Steffen, Assistant Coach Bob Waddell and the other advisers, may enable the Skibos to get somewhere in spite of the seeming handicap under which they are starting out.

CAN you imagine what a task it would be to build up the Pittsburgh baseball team to the strength of a pennant contender again if it were to lose, say, the two Waners and Pie Traynor at one time? Well, Carnegie Tech is up against just such a problem in the loss of three stars like Lloyd Yoder, chosen by nearly every competent critic as All-America tackle; Bill Donohoe, one of the greatest of ball-carrying halfbacks, and Mefort, who ranked abreast of the best ends to be found anywhere. And that's not mentioning two other players of more than ordinary worth in Manby and Goodwin. Filling these places will unquestionably be a considerable job.

COACH STEFFEN is not underestimating the problems that he is facing.

"It will be no easy matter to fill our vacancies," said Wally in discussing the season's prospects while directing his charges through their first workouts on the field.

"Often it is difficult to fill the places of even ordinary players who have been lost, inasmuch as the boys coming up from the freshman team of the previous year cannot possibly be as experienced as those lost by graduation. But in our case this fall the difficulties will be far greater because in Yoder, Donohoe and Mefort we lost three men of exceptional ability and their places will be correspondingly harder to fill. Finding three new men of their caliber in one season would be something on the order of a football miracle. Besides, there are Goodwin and Manby

Blanchard will scale in at 134 pounds for Crowley, who recently deserted the featherweight ranks.

DUAL BILL FINISHES EASTERN JAUNT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—Two Blue Ridge fighters with the Pirate brigade today waved a salute from Philadelphia to the Eightieth Division hosts of Pittsburgh after the pair of soldier-athletes had made a gallant stand that kept the Pittsburgh club in second place in the great race now in progress in the National League.

The Blue Ridge boys would have been thrilled right down to their shoes if they could have seen Sergt. Joe Harris and Corp. John Miljus as this pair of real battlers saved the Pittsburgh legions from the pains and aches of a double defeat at the hands of the stubborn Phillies. Ol' Joe showed the spirit of the Argonne as he hammered the Pirates to a triumph in the second encounter, while Miljus, his long-time buddie in France, withstood all the shells Stuffy McInnis' men could throw at him after the big pitcher had been rushed to No Man's Land.

HARRIS BIG STAR.

For a time it looked as if the daily communique would tell of two bad reverses for the troops of Donie Bush. And then Joe, who had been marked for a base hospital on account of sickness and bruises, went over the top with his trusty bat. Joe drove in six runs in the second game to put the Pirates within two games of the league-leading Cubs.

Therefore, if the Eightieth Division boys, now assembling in Pittsburgh for the tenth annual reunion, see fit to honor Harris and Miljus Friday at Forbes Field they will not be amiss in their plans. The whole Pirate family felt a keen admiration for Coulter Joe as the ailing scrapper licked adversity for the Pirates. Joe came up in the seventh inning of the twilight game with the score tied, two out and three mates on the bases. In view of the fact that the Pirates had dropped the opener, Joe was determined to put over a bold stroke. Like a rifle report his bat cracked and the next instant the rocket rattled against the leftfield fence for a clean double that emptied the bases and decided the game.

A short time before Miljus had been ushered into action. Ol' Joe was a tired spectacle after he had sprinted to third and eventually scored in the inning, and Miljus wasn't going to see his friend's effort go for naught. So Miljus proceeded to carry the Quakers down the shutout alley until the final out was recorded.

KREMER IS BEATEN

Remy Kremer lost a terrific pitching duel of 10 rounds to Herb Pruett in the curtain-raiser.

The Pirates today face another double-header in the notorious handbox park. The dual bill will be the fifth of the season between the two clubs here, and if that isn't enough to drive a flock of pitchers to drinking, then they must be tee-totalers by birth.

The two fights of today will conclude one of the longest jaunts ever taken by the Pittsburgh club. The regulation eastern trip was immediately preceded by a four-game series in St. Louis. The Pirates have not shone on the junket by any means, but they will be in the thick of the fight as they return to meet all comers.

Bobby Jones' Caddy Well Rewarded By Amateur Champ

By Universal Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 31.—Robert T. Jones, Jr., who won the national amateur golf championship here Saturday may be stingy with his strokes, but his pocketbook plays way over par.

Pat Dogherty, the Minikahda caddy who chaperoned Bobby during the tournament, disclosed that Jones was not the only one to bear a trophy away from the national amateur championship.

Before each round of play, Bobby insisted that his caddy take some money.

After the tournament was over Pat found that he had collected a total of $121.

Before departing for Atlanta Jones made no more conspicuous donation to Dr. D. F. Gosin, whom he knocked down with a 300-yard drive. He presented the golf ball that had hit him.

"WON'T CRACK," M'CARTHY

TOO MANY ACES -:- DONIE BUSH'S PROBLEM

A Wonderful Hand? Yes

But Just Try to Play it!!

By CARL W. SHATTO.

WHEN a card player accepts an invitation to participate in a poker or bridge game (or almost any variety of card game other than pinochle), and on the first deal comes up with five aces in one hand, he is likely to find that he is an object of suspicion, a target for criticism and no great favorite with the populace. When the stakes are high he is likely to be a target for missives more painful and deadly than criticism. Frequently, he is bruised. Almost invariably, he is ejected from the game. Occasionally, he is killed.

A man holding five aces is confronted with two or more grave problems. Quite often those having an interest in the session evince some or more curiosity as to how he happens to be holding so many "bullets" at one time. The explanation of such an indelicate situation is a problem in itself. Again, he is confronted with the difficulty of trying to play the five aces to the satisfaction of all concerned, and, although all card games abound in experts, that is a problem that no master mind yet has been able to master.

If it requires technique, skillful dodging, a thick skin and much quick footwork to successfully manipulate five aces in a game in which four are the legitimate limit, how much more troublesome and embarrassing is it to have five aces thrust upon one in a game in which it is impossible to use more than three?

DONIE'S BIG PROBLEM

Those wishing a brief answer, terse and to the point, should ask Donie Bush, manager of the Pirates, for Donie has had occasion to ponder just such a problem as this throughout the summer.

In Paul Waner, Clyde Barnhart, Lloyd Waner, Fred Brickell and Hazen Cuyler, Bush has five of the outfield aces of the National League. To say that it is a "pat" hand is putting it mildly; it is a knockout hand with boomerang tendencies.

If the official baseball rules could be amended so that all five could patrol the outer garden at one time, Donie's troubles would evaporate and the boomerang angle would be eliminated. As it is, however, thousands of fans tune up the anvils for a lusty and prolonged chorus regardless of which of the five aces Bush elects to discard. The hand is such a knockout that certain fans would like to see Bush a knockout victim, no matter how he plays it.

By many alleged experts, Cuyler is rated second only to Paul Waner as an all-round outfielder. There is nothing in baseball that he can not do well. Bush, in a recent interview, said he expected Lloyd Waner to be the only perfect player in the majors next season. And Pooch Barnhart has so many loyal backers that Bush would be accused of treason were he to bench him for Babe Ruth.

CAN'T JUGGLE HAND

And so, even as there is no way of handling five aces harmoniously in a poker game, there is no way in which Bush can juggle his five-ace hand to make it look like other than a back-stage signal summoning the boys to enter bearing criticism, denunciation and discord.

Cuyler is such a great player that he probably could break into any lineup in baseball other than the Pirates'. Brickell is a fleet fly-chaser and baserunner, has a good arm, bats around .335 and knows how to deliver in a pinch. All he lacks is experience. And how is he going to get that here?

When a card "sharp" learns he is suspected of holding five aces he wastes no time in ridding himself of one or more of them as best he can. But when it is rumored that Bush is considering the same move what happens? The anvil chorus, grasping the heavy "bad trade" hammer, rings out louder than before. At that, the fans can not be blamed for shuddering and shouting. They fear that should Bush discard any one of his aces some other manager might pick it up and fill out a royal flush.

Yes, it is some problem, a problem that has given Bush as much worry as all the Pirate injuries of the year. There may be a solution satisfactory to all, but no one has yet found it.

THE SUCKER GAME

An Expose' of the Pari-Mutuel System, demonstrating that you can't beat the races

by FRANK G. MENKE

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of four articles which deal with pari-mutuel race track wagering and which point out how utterly impossible it is for the vast army of horse players to beat the races by wagering through the "machines.")

AN official of one of the biggest pari-mutuel race tracks in the country told me:

"I was offered $25,000 a day for the duration of our meeting by a man who wanted nothing in exchange except the privilege of calculating the money due the players."

"How much would he have made out of it?" I asked.

"That depended upon how great was his thieving instinct," was the answer. "If the total win, place and show tickets on each race that were cashable had totaled 5,000 per race—25,000 for the seven races—and he was content to cheat the ticket holders only $2 per ticket, his gross thieving would have reached $70,000 a day, which, minus the $25,000, would have given him a net profit of $45,000 a day."

By which he meant this:

If tickets on a horse that had won or come second or third figured $11.50 honestly and legitimately due the player, only the greed, the crookedness of that person would regulate the payout to the player.

If he were just ordinarily crooked, he would have paid out $9.50 to the player. If he were inclined to do "heavy cheating" he could have hung up $7.50 as the pay-off to the player, thus cheating each ticket holder of $4 per ticket.

Cheating of this sort is possible at practically every pari-mutuel race track, for the public never gets the chance to check up the actual figures. It must accept the pay-off decided upon by the track officials, whether the pay-off is fair or dishonest.

Last season, a man who plays rather heavily on the races met up with a friend who was a pari-mutuel calculator employed by one of the tracks. He said to the calculator:

"I've played $100 for you in this race. If the horse wins, you get the profits."

DISCREPANCY EXPLAINED.

As the horses reached the barrier, the approximate odds against that horse figured about 3½ to 1, meaning that if the horse won, a $100 bet would show a profit of $350. The horse won. When the payoff prices were posted, it was found that the payoff was only on a basis of 7 to 10—or $70 profit, not $350 profit—on each $100.

The player saw the calculator afterward and said:

"How did it happen that the odds were chopped that way?"

"Well," replied the calculator, "after the race had been run, orders were given to enter $4,500 'comeback money' as having been bet on the horse."

The rules of pari-mutuel wagering provided that no bets of any kind from any source, received in any fashion, are to be entered into the records after the horses have reached the starting barrier and the bell has rung which officially closes the wagering.

Yet, the calculator stated that after the race was run and won, the officials ordered $4,500 registered as having been wagered against that horse in the form of "comeback money," which ordinarily means money

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 31.—Dr. W. H. K. McDiarmid, Harry Wilhelm, C. E. Wilbeck and Chester H. Lehman made up the foursome that won first honors in the nine-hole, four-ball, best-ball match at the Hannastown Country Club here today. The competition marked the opening of a day of entertainment and business for officials of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association who are here as the guests of Thomas S. Jamison, president of the W. P. G. A. Every club in western Pennsylvania is represented. Following an 18-hole medal-play event this afternoon, a business meeting of the association executives will be held this evening.

In winning, the McDiarmid-Wilhelm - Wilbeck - Lehman foursome scored a brilliant best ball of 34.

The card ..... 5 2 4 5 5 3 4 2 4 5—34

Good as the 34 was, it proved to be not much too low, for a second foursome, made up of George W. Ormiston, Edward E. McCoy, Samuel M. Parks and Roy Adams, came home with a neat 36.

The card ..... 5 5 4 5 4 4 5 2 4 4—36

WOMEN AT STANTON

Women golfers from throughout the district will compete on Friday in an 18-hole medal play one-day invitation tournament at the Stanton Heights Golf Club, which will be held under the auspices of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania. Stanton Heights officials expect a large attendance, which will assure the success of the event.

TENNIS FINAL TONIGHT

The finals in the women's tournament of the Pittsburgh Parks Tennis Association will be held tonight at West Park. Miss Alice Wickert, defending champion, and Miss Florence Schneider are the finalists.

SEMI-FINAL GAME TODAY

The M. J. Griffins meet the Eagle team at 6 o'clock this evening on the Pleasant Valley field in the fourth round of the invitation series. The winner will go into the final round.

SOCCER by TOM BIRNS

IT is assured that the Scottish Clan League will go through this season with a possible five-club organization. Clan Gordon of Ambridge, Clan Cameron, Clan McPherson and Clan Grant are the sure quartet.

But there is another outfit down the Allegheny river that wishes to enter the loop.

It was reported that the election of officers was only a temporary measure in the clan loop. But in the writer's opinion there could not be a better man lined up in the ranks of that big organization to keep the fire burning than Tom Clark. If the North side man gets the proper support, another banner season awaits the clan organization.

The referees promptly nailed a suggestion that defaulting referees would have to go down in their jeans for money and expenses in the event of not arriving at a game. The writer feels that this is a poor rule, and will never get by the rules committee of the governing body. We still maintain that "he that pays the piper calls the tune" in every contract and league, but the rule must be equal.

George Brannigan is asked to get in touch with the writer as soon as possible. This is important.

Now that the district league schedule has been placed before the fans there is plenty of pre-season talk going the rounds in Lawrenceville. With the Rovers and Celtics doing their stuff the Strip soccerites should see plenty of action.

Boss of Cubs Is Confident

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—"The Cubs won't crack," Joe McCarthy, aggressive manager of the Chicago Cubs, which is leading Pittsburgh, St. Louis and New York by a stride in the neck-and-neck National League pennant race, snapped out these words in an interview today as much as to say, "I won't let them."

"I think we're going to win the flag—and so does my ball team," he declared.

But—hadn't recent defeats weakened the club's morale?

"Don't worry about this team's morale," McCarthy shot back. "It's O. K. I've got a game ball club."

Strain? Sure! And don't forget, he reminded, the other clubs are under a strain, too.

"Why, he admitted, "I honestly haven't been sleeping nights of late. Monday night, after we dropped a doubleheader to the Giants I didn't sleep a wink. Night after night I lay awake playing games over and over. "I've quit going to shows in the evening. Can't enjoy them. Feel as nervous as a cat. This pennant race is no junket, believe me."

SPENDS HOURS ALONE

Members of the Chicago club said McCarthy spends hours sitting alone, smoking.

Which club does McCarthy fear most—Pittsburgh, St. Louis or New York?

"It's a toss up," he replied. "All three are very dangerous."

As I said, I think Chicago will win and I'd make the prediction if we were in fourth place. That's the kind of a race it is.

"I think we'll decide the issue when we get back on our own home grounds. We've been a winning home club ball team all year.

"The Giants are going good now, but they have the roughest road ahead of any of the contenders. They must come down the stretch on the road, while Chicago, Pittsburgh and St. Louis will be playing at home.

"I don't regard our present slump as disastrous. Didn't St. Louis go to Boston at this time last year with a three-game lead, drop it, come back later and win the pennant?"

Psychology—did McCarthy believe in baseball psychology? Yes. Well, what psychology will he use to snap his club out of their losing streak?

"Win a couple of ball games, that's all," he replied, shortly. "Then they'll go."

Does he believe in "master minding"—telling the players when to hit and when not to hit?

"I sure do," he replied. "'Do as I say' is my rule on this club. I run my ball club. When I do that there is no second guessing, and I take all the responsibility."

ROOT OVERWORKED

McCarthy explained recent defeats by the fact that he has only five starting pitchers—Root, Jones, Carlson, Blake and Bush. He admitted he has been overworking Root, leading pitcher of the league.

He's got to stop that. That's why he has sent for Phil Weinert, left-hand pitcher of the Pacific Coast League. He said his most dependable players this year have been Root, Hartnett, the catcher; Grimm, first baseman and Stephenson and Wilson, outfielders.

"Well," the interviewer remarked, "well, Mr. McCarthy, even if you don't come through this year you will have done remarkably well, anyway."

"Hell," he replied, "I want to win—I'm not thinking for a second about losing this pennant."

"Both Great Clubs," Veeck Says of Old, New Cubs

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31—Umpire Beans Reardon and Pie Traynor had a terrific argument in the tenth inning of the first battle yesterday with Attreau running for Scott, on second. Spalding grounded over second. Wright made a sensational stop of the ball, but the play at first was beaten by the batter. Attreau apparently thought the ball was through for an outfield single and he whirled around third. The Quaker coach shooed him back as Joe Harris hurled the ball to Traynor. He tried to get the ball on the runner before he could get back. There was a big scuffle at the bag. Reardon was on top of the action and he ruled that the Quaker was safe. Traynor was sore.

IN THE first place, Attreau presented the tying run and there was only one out. Traynor stormed around. Attreau scored a moment afterward and a little later Leach drove over the winning run with a fly that fell against the detestable right field fence. It was a very easy chance on any other park but the notorious Baker bowl. The Pirate captain realized the seriousness of the situation as he tried to make a play on Attreau. In the argument with Reardon, he is said to have hinted that Beans was a "homer." And that is an insult to an umpire. The name implies that on close ruling the umpire will favor the home club. Beans had a pretty fair comeback for Pie. "I wasn't a homer in Pittsburgh when I called you out for leaving third base too soon and demanded the angered umpire. "I had to stand for a shower of pop bottles, but I called you out just the same," roared Beans.

REARDON is not very large, but he was able to mix with his fists quite successfully with more than one rough and ready fellow of the Coast League. He knew this and he was so mad that he could not resist the temptation to let Beans know that the umpire would not be mixing with such-and-such a fellow of the coast if he tangled with Pie.

TRAYNOR likes Beans; in fact the whole Pittsburgh club thinks he is one of the best umpires in the game. Arguments of this sort do not hurt anybody. Traynor thought he was right and Reardon thought he was right, and naturally with two positive types thus engaged there was bound to be some fireworks.

THE law seems to keep Earl Smith out of Boston, and there ought to be a num.e law to keep Lee Meadows out of Philadelphia when the Pirates are here. The Quakers don't let Meadows light. Lee often starts auspiciously only to retire under a fusillade of baseblits.

Ty Sets One More Record

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Ty Cobb today began his twenty-third year in big league baseball.

On August 30, 1905, he joined the Detroit Tigers, where he remained as player and later manager for 21 years.

In entering upon his twenty-third year Cobb is expected to have added another record to his long list of batting achievements. He has played in more games than any other baseball player with the exception of Honus Wagner, who played 21 years.

Cobb made his twenty-second consecutive run on April 26, last. He made his four thousandth hit on July 18 and went to bat for the eleven thousandth time in a game last Sunday.

"I have learned a lot about the old game in this time," said Cobb this morning as he packed up to leave Florida, as he rounded out his twenty-third year. And I'm not quitting yet. I'm going to keep on trying until I get a little more of the good."

Cobb spent all of his years in baseball with the Detroit club until he was released from its management before the present season opened. He was then signed by Connie Mack for the Athletics.

THROUGH the SPORTLENS by HAVEY BOYLE

A TENNIS enthusiast in a letter to this paper rushes to the defense of the game and against our idea that the papers often overplay tennis contends that the readers eat up every word about the net sport, as we call it. Concluding, the correspondent says: "Hope Mr. Boyle's opinion won't have any influence in the matter."

Havey J. Boyle.

Let the correspondent cease to worry. The influence we wield in any given matter if laid end to end would not reach from here to this period. Over various matters in sport over 10 years we have had hot flashes of indignation and have suffered cold heads of fear-inspired perspiration, but upon reviewing the scene as a whole no major reform can be traced to us.

Even in the two very small matters, against which we have campaigned, i. e., the 'kerchief on the tennis player's forehead, and the custom of serving pickle, tomato and lettuce with a ham sandwich when the customer only wants a ham sandwich barely got to first base—and never came close to scoring. We are almost tempted to cease all reforms and let the silly old world go to ruin if it so insists.

ABOUT a week ago, after midnight, we picked up a pedestrian in our machine who asked for a lift. As he stepped out of the machine we pressed a gun against his side and said: "Put that watch in my coat pocket." We had felt a touch against our watch pocket as the stranger started to leave the machine. Our watch was not there. He, without a word, took the watch from his pocket and placed it in ours.

But what we started out to say was if you have a friend who is minus a watch let us know for on reaching home we found our own watch on the dresser and somehow foolishly looked at the stranger's watch which he had so fearfully put into our pocket.

ONCE, a girl-writer, engaged to "do" a word series came to us with her troubles, asking for advice. This we willingly offered for what it is worth. That was two years ago. The young lady since has written two novels, a movie, and this month in an intellectual magazine has a short story. We suppose the title of this chapter should be, "From a World Series Reporter to a Popular Novelist." The moral, however, is not so clear. For what she set forth in one of her books about the Younger Generation and what she tells of a Night club she never learned from the world series games.

ONE night recently in Chicago we met Tom Rodkin, former boxing promoter and referee of Pittsburgh, now engaged as the manager of a good musical review called: "LeMaire's Affairs."

It continues to be a small world. A former Follies girl, now the wife of the orchestra leader in Tom's show wanted to know how all the folks in Mt. Oliver are getting along. She is a Mt. Oliver girl. We told her about the recent rumpus the Volunteer firemen had with the borough authorities and how Burgess John Wagner seems to be carrying the load of his office well, and for quite a time the former Follies girl and a local boy from Carrick talked of this and that.

MR. RICKARD is not the only man in the country who associates with millionaires in promoting boxing shows. There is Jean Conway, of Johnstown, for instance, who is putting on a boxing show at the Cambria County fair, next Monday, sponsored by Charles M. Schwab. One time, before Tunney was nearly so famous, Mr. Schwab promoted an expensive match between Tunney and another eastern boxer. That card in the small town of Rhensburg cost more than any bout ever held in Pittsburgh. Unfortunately, it was not a good bout, either. Now Conway has gone back sensibly to matching boys with local appeal which is much better than importing high priced talent with no local attachment.

CHICAGO will be well able to take care of the big fight crowd. There is a roaring, bubbling city, spreading out in all directions, building, apparently, at every corner. A man drove us to Dempsey's camp and on the trip he gave us the correct idea about Chicago. "We have built 24 hotels in two years and more are on the rise," he said proudly. "New boulevards and new subways are on the way. Furthermore," he said, in one last proud flourish, "the beer in Chicago cannot be equaled in any city in the land." We felt quite humble about it all.

IT IS the opinion of the boys in Chicago, that in spite of the new grandstand, the Cubs have cracked. They look for St. Louis to come up and beat the field, next picking the Giants. The notion in Chicago is that the Pirates are again torn with dissension, and they refuse to listen to a denial. The Cutler story reached Chicago's ears and remembering the Carey blow-up of last year, these out-of-town fans imagine the Pirates are in the same mental mood they suffered last season after all the shooting had taken place.

Recovers Net Title

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Helen Wills can survey the women's tennis world today and call it her own.

Climaxing a sensational drive that began last June when she fought her way through the classic Wimbledon tournament to the continental championship, the 21-year-old California girl yesterday conquered her finalist opponent in the American singles championship at Forest Hills, Miss Betty Nuthall of England, 6-1, 6-4.

Abroad, Miss Wills defeated the pick of women stars of all the European nations. At home she disposed of one of the finest fields that ever competed in an American championship. The net result is undisputed supremacy for the year 1927. This is the fourth time in five years that "little poker face" has been the queen of American tennis, and she is still the hardest hitter that the women's game has ever known.

LOSER SHOWS CLASS

Although Miss Wills won in straight sets the final match was not without its element of drama. "Bounding Betty" had her inning; it developed in the second set and it brought a crowd of 5,000 to a high pitch of enthusiasm as the 16-year-old school girl grappled up from a count of 1-4 to capture three out of four games from her cautious, calculating rival.

Helen Wills was and is supreme, but the means of her triumph yesterday served to indicate that she is to face within the next two years at least a renewed threat more serious from the same smiling youngster she turned back in the title match.

Experts have decreed that within two years Miss Nuthall will be close to a parity with Miss Wills. The rapidity of the English girl's improvement is phenomenal. Her game picked up tremendously during the short American invasion by the English contingent. Maj. D. R. Lacombe, manager of the British Wightman Cup team, regards Betty in the light of a coming champion.

PRAISES LOSER

The highest compliment for the British player, however, came from Miss Wills. "She plays a remarkable game. I think she is the best player in the world of her age, and I believe she will be the world's best in a few years."

Miss Wills, barring unforeseen developments, should continue to reign over American courts for several years, if the speed of her latest triumph is any indication at all. In the five matches she won to regain the title she did not drop one set, and she lost only 18 games.

CHUCK WIGGINS AMAZED BY NEW GENE

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP.)—An old ring foe of Gene Tunney, having swapped punches again with the big Marine after a lapse of four years, marveled today at the changes time does make.

He is Chuck Wiggins, veteran light heavyweight from Indianapolis, who claims he has been searching New York state in quest of Gene's training camp for a week without finding it because of the rain that rinded his vision. Monday night Chuck was rescued, drenched to the skin, in Gloversville, 40 miles from here, and was ferried to the camp over roads flooded with days of almost continuous rain.

"For 14 years I've been fighting," Chuck soliloquized after his first set-to as the heavyweight champion's newest sparring partner, "and in that time I've met them all. Twice I fought Tunney. First in 1922 and again in 1923, and twice Gene licked me. I hadn't seen him since until today, but I want to tell you he's a different fighter now—a great fighter.

"Gene weighed only 170 pounds at our second scrap, in the old Commonwealth Club in New York. He was a genuine light-heavyweight then, speedy. With a nice right hand, a fast jab and plenty of defense. I took quite a trouncing.

PACKS UP TONIGHT

"But this Tunney is new to me. He weighs 195 pounds, but he's even faster than when we last met. And he hasn't begun yet to speed up in his training. Gene hits better—does everything better—and he's so sure of every move he makes. Perhaps that's what being the champion does to you."

After the workout today Gene will pack his ring paraphernalia for the trip to Chicago, scene of the champion's first title defense against Jack Dempsey, September 22, and the final three weeks of intensive training. He will motor to Utica late tomorrow afternoon to make train connections. Three sparring partners, Wiggins, Vidaletk and Frank Muskie, will make the trip.

JACK MAY RESUME WORK

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 31—(U. P.)—Jack Dempsey was expected today to resume sessions with his sparring partners, although there was no assurance that Leo P. Flynn would not order a third day of illness to prevent the heavyweight challenger from "getting in the pink too soon."

It was reported, however, that a bruised shoulder had made it necessary for Dempsey to confine his training activities to golf and road work for the last two days. Whatever the indisposition, it could not be regarded as serious because Dempsey has continued his lighter exercise and was pronounced to be "entirely."

HARLEY A. C. DRILLS

The Harley A. C., a lightweight grid team, has been reorganized with Jim Wigmore, formerly of the Quantico Marines, as coach. Players wishing a tryout should report at the practice session to be held at Melrose and Charles street tomorrow evening. For games call Fairfax 5450.

GLENDALE TIGERS READY

The Glendale Tigers, who won 15 of 17 games last season, are primed for a new campaign and would like to fill the bill September 11. Leading lightweight junior teams wishing a good attraction call Carnegie 415-W between 6 and 7 p. m.

TAD'S TIDBITS

WE HEAR from Chicago that Li'l Artha Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, is to box a few rounds with Jack Dempsey every once in a while.

Leo Flynn, who is the big boss at Dempsey's camp, is very sweet on Johnson and, although the latter is 49 years of age, Leo knows there are tricks he could teach Dempsey. Flynn says that no heavyweight ever lived who could beat Johnson in his prime.

There never was a fighter who could play safe in close as Johnson could. He had the knack of holding his opponent's arms, inside the elbows, and no matter how hard the fellow tried to punch he was powerless. It was while he held his man this way that Johnson did most of his laughing and talking.

Joe Choynski knocked Johnson out when he was a young fellow by hitting him in the breakaway. John learned then that the best way to break was to be sure you were safe. Ever since the Choynski fight he held his man securely and only broke at the referee's command.

Tunney at Philadelphia held Dempsey as Johnson used to hold his opponents. Johnson can show Dempsey some tricks on that holding gag that may do him some good.

Li'l Artha May Help Dempsey Train

About New York Referees.

A CERTAIN manager was talking to the writer yesterday about the New York referees and the foul rulings. He can't see them at all. He says:

"One referee let Dempsey hit Firpo while old Dead Pan was getting up off the floor. He let Dempsey back into the ring after he was knocked out of it and didn't even raise his finger. Another referee let Dempsey foul Sharkey and gave him the fight. Oh, I know ALL the people don't think Sharkey was fouled, but I do, because I saw him fouled.

"Well, the other night another referee disqualified Uzcudun because he thought he fouled Delaney. Say, that guy didn't FOUL Delaney, he HAD HIM LICKED! Anyway, Delaney got the nod. You can't figure WHAT THEY'LL DO THESE DAYS.

"Years ago, when we took a fighter to another city there were always THREE REFEREES IN TOWN. One straight and square guy, one crooked guy and one incompetent guy.

"We at least KNEW WHERE WE STOOD in those days.

"Nowadays a fellow's in the dark."

HERE IS THE WHOLE STORY

Knowing that a certain high quality tire manufacturer was overstocked due to the backward season, we made him a ridiculously low offer for his surplus stock. Much to our surprise he accepted our low bid—providing that we did not use his name in advertising. So we don't mention it—but you will have no trouble recognizing the tire as soon as you see it and then you'll be surprised and delighted at the low prices.

Local Stock List Is Quiet, Narrow

Dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange were in light volume again today, with little material change from the prices of the Saturday session. Screw & Bolt reported yesterday's part-share sale, representing off fractionally, but there was very little stock for sale at the indicated quotation. Investment interest declined to pull a few stocks materially higher, and its receipt failed to be followed by enough selling to force them to the next 50 level of activity. Trading was dull and narrow today. Duke Gas & Utilities continues to figure in the daily transactions in a small way, but there has been no material development of the price from around 8 to 8¼. A block of 100 shares came on sale at 8¼, the latter figure. Low-priced shares were no change in the early trading session, and the list as a whole at the ended the session yesterday.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Car Loadings Up for Week.

The American Railway Association announced that revenue freight cars loaded during the week ended August 13 totaled 1,064,515 cars, an increase of 6,000 cars over the preceding week, a decrease of 15,000 cars from the corresponding week last year, as well as a decrease of 13,000 cars under the same week in 1925. Loadings so far this year are 5.6 per cent behind 1926.

Operations at Little River.

Two wells have been completed in the Little River pool in Upper South Fork of the Bowling Green field, both producing from the Big Lime sand at about 1,000 feet. These are the first wells to be completed in this pool since July 1. Illuminating Company supplied the necessary well June 30 with its first gas. Now making 4,000,000 cubic feet per day, and is expected to increase to 6,000,000 cubic feet. There are possibilities of 10 more wells in the pool.

Johns-Manville.

Commenting on the current prosperity of Johns-Manville Corporation, Lyndon W. Metcalfe, president, says: "The company's sales in the field of building construction with sales of asbestos paper, wallboard and roofing have been very large and will up to the peak level of last year. Reports from our larger distributors throughout the country indicate that building activities of this type may be expected to continue on this heavy scale into the future. The manufacture of power plant materials and specialties is also at an active pace and business among manufacturers generally is excellent throughout the country and there are no indications of any slowing in the future."

St. Paul Car Loadings.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad in first 17 days of August handled 170,676 revenue freight cars against 180,342 in the same period of 1926.

Rock Island Loadings.

The Rock Island in the first 24 days of August handled 110,832 cars of revenue freight, against 144,031 in the corresponding period of 1926.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad handled 11,713 revenue freight cars in week ended August 7, against 12,000 in corresponding week of 1926.

Aggregate Bail Not Drops.

July aggregate bail transmitting shows of $77,837,000, compared with $150,000 in July, 1926.

Western Union Loss $922,145.

Report of American Union Company and subsidiaries for six months ended June 30, 1927, shows net loss of $922,145 after charges and dividends on $25,000,000 of preferred and $100,000,000 of common stock, a deficit of $1,841,615. This is first semi-annual statement issued by A. G. Pierce, president, stating that shareholders are entitled to more information on company's affairs than that available through the annual report, and decided upon the policy of issuing semi-annual statements in order to regulate future intervals.

Gallon sales Extend.

J. W. Van Dyke, president of the Atlantic Refining Company, says the company sold 567,156,411 gallons of petroleum products in the first six months of 1927 on which an average price of 11.97 cents per gallon was realized, against 511,840,401 gallons sold in the same period of 1926, on which an average price of 12.16 cents per gallon was realized.

Humble's Storage Capacity.

Humble Oil and Refining Company has begun construction of tanks for crude oil and barrel storage space at Port Ingleside on San Patricio county, Texas, on the company's pipeline system. The completed system will have storage of two million barrels and will up to the peak level of last year. Reports from our larger distributors throughout the country indicate that building activities of this type may be expected to continue on this heavy scale into the future. The manufacture of power plant materials and specialties is also at an active pace and business among manufacturers generally is excellent throughout the country and there are no indications of any slowing in the future.

Atlantic Defends "Telephone."

Atlantic Refining Company and subsidiaries report that the six months ended June 30 resulted in a net loss of $1,477,116 after interest, depreciation, retirement reserve, Federal taxes, dividends and intangible deductions. This was against a net income of $5,144,115 or $1.09 a share on the common stock of company after 7 per cent preferred dividends in the first half of 1926. A net loss in the income account, after charging development costs, depreciation, etc., was reported after a similar charge for the first six months of 1926. The net loss would have been $1,113,871 as against $2,421,615 in the period in 1926.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Paris and Washington dispatches discussing the proposed French refunding operation, which may run as high as $100,000,000, enlivened the bond market today, in the absence of any general interest in the listed trade. Details of the financing plan, which Secretary Mellon is expected to approve, have not yet been announced, and it is not yet known whether the operation will involve conversion at a lower interest rate, or redemption. The French 8 per cent bonds are callable, and about $70,000,000 of them are outstanding.

French bonds were firm, particularly the governmental 7½s, which moved up to 115½, the highest at which they have ever sold. Department of Seine 7s and French 8s also improved fractionally.

Little business was transacted in the domestic groups. International Telephone 5½s were accumulated in small amounts, and fractional advances, just under their high prices, were scored by Katy 5s and South Porto Rico Sugar 7s.

United States government obligations were inactive.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

NOTICE
FEDERAL EQUIPMENT TRUST
Pittsburgh Pa., August 1, 1927.

To Holders of Trust Certificates:

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned as Trustee under a certain lease of railroad equipment dated December 15, 1910, between The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, and Federal Tank Line, and under a trust agreement accompanying said lease and of even date therewith between James O. Carr, The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, and Federal Tank Line, as modified by any agreement dated December 15, 1924, between The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, Federal Tank Line and James O. Carr that Federal Tank Line, its successor in all of the rights of said Federal Tank Line under said lease and trust agreement as amended pursuant to the provisions of any such agreement dated December 15, 1925, has elected to redeem on September 15, 1927, all of the trust certificates issued by the undersigned under said agreement and now outstanding.

The trust certificates which by their terms mature on September 15, 1927, will be paid on and after September 15, 1927, at the principal amount thereof with all dividends accrued thereupon to said date. All outstanding trust certificates will cease on September 15, 1927, and must be presented with all dividend warrants for payment on or after said date at the office of the undersigned in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Payment will be made only upon presentation and surrender at said office on or after said date of the respective trust certificates and dividend warrants.

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

SEPTEMBER is the big month for tourists to currycomb New York. Too much has been written about this town being a nest of gorillas and an incubator of crime.

As a matter of truth New York is the hub of science and the pin point of culture. There is nothing in New York to shock anybody—from Chicago.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

If a southerner or a westerner gets tangled up in a jam in New York it is his own fault. There are still plenty of places in town which are not being raided by the police.

The American Museum of Natural History, Columbus avenue and Seventy-Seventh street. All kinds of stuffed junk. Umbrellas checked free.

New York Historical Society, Central Park West and Seventy-sixth street. No cover charges.

Grant's Tomb, Riverside drive and One Hundred and Twenty-second street. Admission free. But no parking. One of the few apartments on Riverside drive where strangers are welcome.

Metropolitan Museum of Art, Fifth avenue and Eighty-second street. This joint is worth a stare. Mondays and Fridays, twenty-five cents. All other days are free. We will see you there on Wednesday.

The Aquariam, down at the Battery. Fish's visiting hours are from nine to five. Admission is free. If you haven't been silly enough to visit the Metropolitan Museum on Monday or Friday you haven't spent a nickel so far.

Van Cortlandt House, Broadway and Two Hundred and Forty-second street. Something to do with history, but it is far enough up Broadway to be safe. You can get a two-week membership card free of charge.

Central Park. Daily exhibition of botany and bird life. Every Monday morning there is a magnificent collection of paper bags and Sunday newspapers. You can pick up a nice, autographed pie plate. There is no admission fee unless some slicker is kidding you.

Museum of the American Indian, Broadway and One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street. No admission and you are foolish to buy souvenir postcards.

Carnegie Hall. Lecture on the medicinal values of slippery elm and blue delft china every time a lecturer gets the dough to hire the hall. Harmless and not habit forming.

In addition we have the L stations and other art centers. There are few cities which can boast of this list of natural wonders which are amusing as well as instructive.

We want visitors to get the correct idea of New York. And if they follow this guide when in town, they might as well have stayed at home.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

On "True Charm."

When a WOMAN takes herself too SERIOUSLY
She has lost her CHARM. This, of course,
Is why so FEW MEN ever have any
CHARM to lose,
A CLEVER woman can afford to BE A little FOOLISH over a MAN,
But it seems she can never AFFORD to LOOK foolish,
A charming WIFE, of course, must take
The small THINGS that UPSET her Husband very SERIOUSLY, and she must TREAT the Big, troublesome things with a light CONFIDENCE, INTELLIGENT men don't want ARGUMENTS from Their wives, they want AUDITORS. Fear often makes A big man talk WILDLY, but a little LOVING WOMAN, listening quietly, can LULL every storm.

Welcome to the Eightieth

Not Measurable in Words.

The warmth of the welcome Pittsburgh extends to the Eightieth Division, which meets here today for its convention, cannot be measured by the words employed to express the greeting no matter how sincere it may be. Our feeling for the Eightieth comes from the heart and heart language never emerges from the lips. It is through the eyes the heart speaks and our eyes today give utterance to words lips are incapable of framing.

We would be glad to welcome the Eightieth for any reason at all. We are doubly happy because it is made up of "our boys." True, only the Three Hundred Nineteenth and Three Hundred Twentieth Infantry and Three Hundred Fifteenth Machine Gun Battalion were Allegheny county units, but they are all our boys. Our pride is in every one of them.

Who "won the war" is a question of little consequence to these veterans now. They KNOW they did their part in bringing it to a conclusion. Let the powers dispute as to the side on which victory's banner rests—our soldier boys have turned their faces to a new battle front.

The Blue Ridge Division, as it is designated, meets with a serious purpose. The program, of course, includes entertainment—and plenty of it—but behind it all is the purpose of being of service to comrades in arms and TO OUR COUNTRY.

We are glad the division is here. We are glad because they are our boys. We boast of the great record of the division—HISTORY in big letters—in the several Meuse-Argonne offensives in which it participated. Its bravery is attested by the 619 decorations and citations awarded to its members.

They are our boys and we are PROUD as well as glad to welcome them.

Less Corn, Greater Profit

The American farmer will, it is estimated, soon be better off by nearly half a billion dollars than he was a year ago—this, by producing one hundred million fewer bushels of corn than he grew in 1926.

The fact makes clear that production alone is not the key to success.

The city manufacturer found that out long ago.

Once he, too, produced blindfolded and took chances on getting his products to a profitable market.

The result was a series of alternate gluts and famines, which went by the name of panics or hard times.

Then it dawned on him that the sensible plan was to find out how many of his products the market would need. By associating with others in the same line, collecting and exchanging market statistics and figuring output accordingly, he came gradually to a stabler basis.

It will be admitted that it is easier for him than for the farmer to control production. He has to reckon only with goods, machinery and labor. The farmer, in addition, has to reckon with the variables of climate.

Yet if farmers would study markets and co-operate as skilfully as city industrialists do, it should in time be possible for them to arrive at a comparable stability in most of their products.

Bridge and Tube Needed

The project of downtown business men to have constructed a bridge across the Monongahela, with a tube under Mt. Washington, to connect the proposed bridge and West Carson street with Sawmill Run improvements, which have been "on paper" for some time, is one that should be speeded.

Traffic arteries will be a long time catching up with the growth of traffic, but the problem is a pressing one and the business men who are back of the present moves must be commended for their public spirit and enterprise.

The proposed improvement is one that has been long in the air. It is five years since a survey was made for two tunnels to the South Hills. The Liberty Tubes are one of the results of that survey. The movement now under way, it seems assured, will provide the other underground avenue—with a badly needed bridge in addition.

Present traffic alone would be sufficient reason for carrying this work to completion, and in addition there are other weighty reasons. The physical city is like the house of a growing family. When the family is small it can live in a small house. As it grows the dwelling must be enlarged.

Father Pitt's family is growing. It needs a much larger house.

Charts of Progress

Optimists would enjoy a set of charts exhibited at the Pan-African Congress. They show, for example, that negro illiteracy in 50 years has declined from 80 to 23 per cent.

In the corresponding decade of the last century, only four American Negroes graduated from a college. This decade the number will exceed 7,500.

Not far from two and a half million of the 11,200,000 Negroes indicated as inhabitants of the United States by 1930 will be in school, learning more practical lessons than their parents learn.

Intelligence, character and thrift are the sign boards of progress for every race. Our county pomotes all three.

Swift Pace in the Air

Licutenant Williams of the Navy is going to try out a mystery plane which, it is asserted, will fly 300 miles an hour, and hopes to lift the Schneider Cup now in possession of an Italian ace.

The greatest speed attained by a plane thus far was 278 miles an hour. Even that is going some. Three hundred miles an hour will be five miles a minute or 440 feet a second. That is going some more.

It is difficult to realize just why anybody should want to move around at that speed when there are so many things to see, but if anybody is going to travel 300 miles an hour, it is a fair guess that it will be an American who will do it—and in an American plane.

"Going Up" seems to be the slogan which indicates America's interest in aviation—and it is about time.

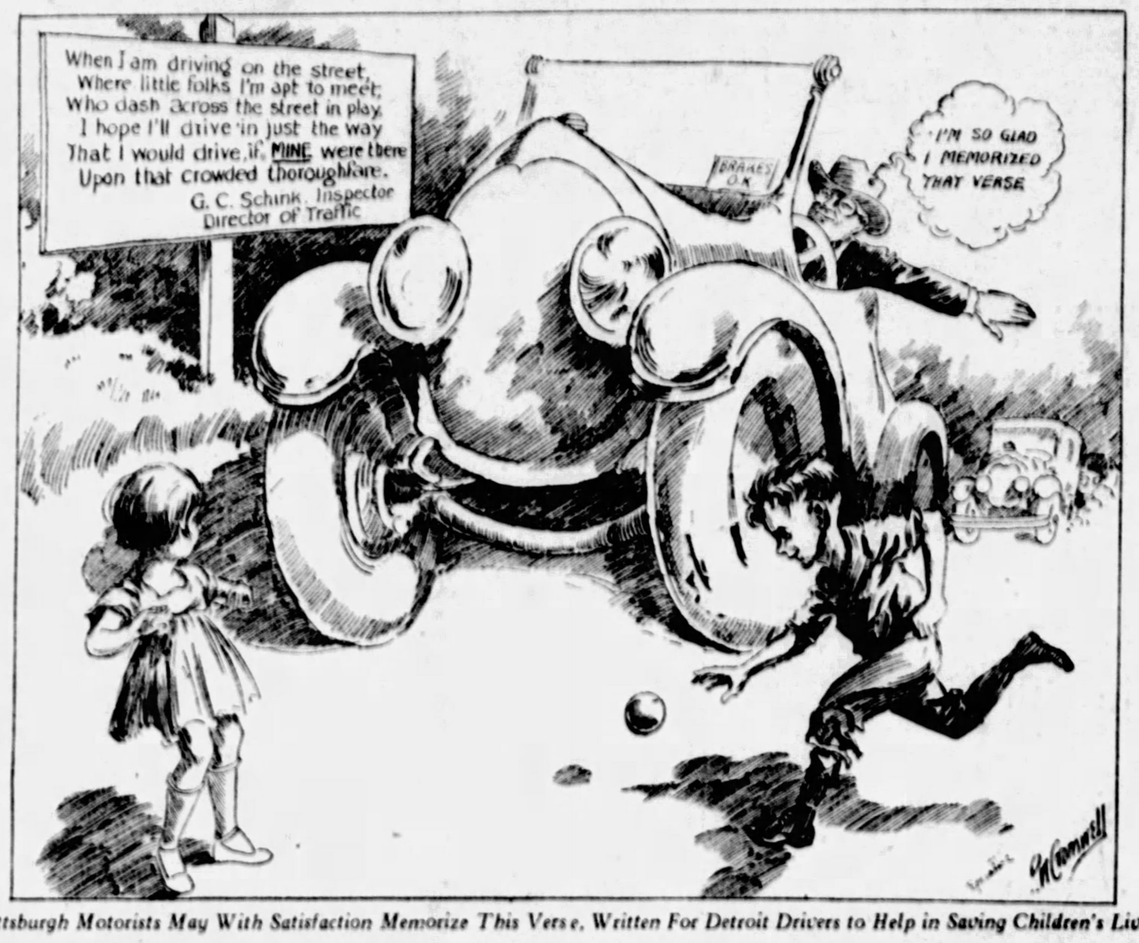
Mothers' Sublime Faith

The world applauds the courage of its aviators but should not overlook the mothers who bore them.

"I had entire faith in Art," the mother of Goebel, Hawaiian flight winner, said as she canned fruit while her son spanned the sea. Everybody remembers how Lindy's mother behaved.

Sublime beyond comparison is the confidence of a good mother in a worthy son.

THE THOUGHTFUL MOTORIST



Pittsburgh Motorists May With Satisfaction Memorize This Verse, Written For Detroit Drivers to Help in Saving Children's Lives.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Horses

ARE people losing interest in horses since they have been shoved aside by the automobile? No, certainly not anyone who has ever really known a horse. It warms the heart to see the pictures of horses drawn by those old Cro-Magnon artists on the walls of prehistoric caverns, because their forms and attitudes so resemble those of the colts that many of us rode bareback when we were boys. They prove how old is friendship between man and horse. They tell the same story that was repeated thousands of years later by the prancing steeds of Phidias on the frieze of Parthenon. The horse will disappear when his master-friend does and not before.

But the fact remains that the horse has been driven away from the great centers of human population, leading many to suppose that the number of horses in existence must be continually diminishing, and must already have become small compared with what it formerly was.

This, I am happy to be informed by a French writer, is far from being so. It is true that the loss of a million horses during the war caused an enormous diminution of the equine population of France, but the deficit has already been two-thirds filled, so that in 1926 there were 2,894,000 horses as against 3,220,000 on the eve of the war—a difference of only 326,000, which bids fair to be changed to the other side of the balance.

It is a remarkable fact, which Frenchmen like as little as anyone, that while the equine population is increasing the human is standing still, if not actually receding.

But, if horses are increasing numerically in France, where are they to be seen? Certainly not in the streets of Paris or other towns. No, but go out among the farms and you will find what has become of the horse—even of horses that were once as thoroughly inoculated with city habits as the most incurable boulevardier; they have gone to work on the land. In the country they have even, in some cases, turned the tables on the automobile, which they are replacing in some industries where there are onerous burdens to be drawn, but plenty of time for the drawing. Here the horse resumes his ancient role of economizing for man. Many a peasant who before the war borrowed a horse from his neighbor when he had work on his little farm that only a horse could do, now has a horse of his own, and often two. With his tastes and habits he would rather have two horses than one automobile; and no doubt they serve him better.

The return of the horse countrywards, is leading to a notable change in his physical type. My authority says:

"Almost everywhere, the horse, renouncing the transportation of human beings, is becoming a 'tractioneur,' and increasing in size and weight. In this he tends to resemble his ancestors, who, 'destriers' of the tournaments, or heavy 'palefrois' of the royal parades, were always horses of massive make."

From the same source I learn that horses are increasing in number in other countries. The number in the United States is said to have increased during the last 10 years from 25 to 28 million. In Belgium and in England horses are more and more being employed for drawing heavy loads, the largest types being in demand. Argentina calls for many similar horses, and since this strong, heavy type seems always to have been the favorite in France, hopes are entertained of developing a large export business in French work horses. The French authorities are aiding the producers to improve their stock and to eliminate inferior strains, and a law enacted March 8, 1923, for the surveillance of stallions is counted on to establish a high reputation abroad for horses of French paternity.

Correct Mistakes

FORGET the hard luck of yesterday.

Don't let your mistakes of 24 hours ago cloud what you are doing today.

Don't let your errors discourage you and cause you to lose confidence in yourself.

Remember your mistakes enough and to the point of correcting them, but don't worry about them.

Today is the day for which you will be held accountable.

You cannot change the past today, but you can make today what you want it, perhaps.

Worry over past deeds or problems that you have failed to register correctly, unfits you for your best work.

On the other hand, do not treat your mistakes too lightly.

It does not excuse you that others have failed.

Piling up today's disagreeable things with those you will meet tomorrow, makes a double burden.

Thinking of the past does not help you to wrestle successfully with present disturbing elements.

Tales That Are Told

The Caddy's Opinion

DURING a caddies' strike in Scotland a number of green hands were taken on by a famous golf club, and though they tried their best, some of the accidents that happened were very amusing.

On one occasion a member who had been playing rather badly turned to one of the temporary caddies at the end of the first nine holes.

"Fancy, seventy-eight," he remarked. "That's the worst golf I've ever played."

"I don't agree with you, sir," said the caddie. "I think it's quite good. I was caddying for a gentleman this morning, and it took him eighteen holes to get eighty."

In the Swim

A LANDSCAPE artist sold a picture to a very wealthy woman. The latter soon became tired of it, however, and finally engaged another artist to paint a man walking down the road in the center of the canvas.

The artist did so and meeting the man who had painted the original a few days later, he told him about it.

"Down the road?" exclaimed the painter. "There's no road in that picture!"

"There is," retorted his friend. "It runs down the middle of the canvas."

"Road!" shrieked the other. "You crazy idiot! That's not a road! That's a swiftly-flowing river!"—London Answers.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—There are innumerable queer ways of making a living in this well-advertised metropolis. Some quite honorable and others not quite so. Along the Big Aisle are a number of what are known as "ticket hoppers."

They make a good living picking up choice seats at ticket agencies and selling them to pirating curb speculators. A number of the latter gentry, incidentally, realize profits from $10,000 to $15,000 as a part of the shake down endured by theatergoers.

Tin Pan Alley employs men with lusty voices for from $75 to $150 a week to act as song pluggers. It is their job to hang around cabarets and cafes and find trivial excuse to sing songs they are boosting. Several successful song writers began as "pluggers."

It was revealed the other day that a man out of a job appointed himself a carriage starter in front of a chain restaurant. There was no law to prevent him opening taxi doors or fetching taxis for patrons. He wore no uniform, but was an industrious worker.

The restaurant management investigated after several weeks and found the man was making more than $50 a week in tips. They promptly put out a uniformed starter of their own—demanding one-third of his profits. Many carriage starters work without salary.

A high priced jewelry establishment hires a suave cuff shooter to flit among society folk here and abroad and adroitly jockey them to its establishment for their jewelry needs. There is another man who makes a living promising people to land them in society.

There are professional wise crackers paid $50 an evening to come as guests to parties and liven things up. An agency has on hand men for whose reliability they vouch to act as escorts for women for the evening. And some men pick up holding places in movie ticket lines.

* * *

There is a species of cads along Broadway who, through subtle gossip, link their names with women of excellent reputation in effort to glorify themselves and secure publicity. Recently a smirking, oily-haired cabaret performer was rumored to be affianced to a woman of great wealth and standing. He spread the gossip himself at the time the lady was contemplating a divorce.

Recently all members of the Weber and Fields company in New York attended a theatrical matinee. Those present were: Joe Weber, Lew Wolfe Hopper, William Collier, Amelia Summerville, Edgar Smith and Frankie Bailey.

An old-fashioned husband was discovered the other evening. At a lively party he attended a young lady with a baby flap attached herself to him and cooed: "You are going to be my beau for the evening."

"I fear not," he coldly responded. "Wherever I go my wife continues to be my best girl."

A venerable type of plantation darkey shuffled over a cross street and asked a friend a direction. He was confused and lost. "What are you doing so far from home, Colonel?" asked my friend.

"The Kluxers gave me a stroppin', Cap'n, and I had to move on," he explained. As an indication of New York's cold storage heart it can be added the old fellow now has a pleasant job of light work on a New Jersey estate where he can remain as long as he pleases.

Overheard in a cafe booth on Broadway:

"He's one of those Rubes who holds your hand straight up in the air when he dances, then walks you home and wants to neck in the hall."

The country boys used to be more generous. They took along a nickpoke of gum drops.

The Hollywood Bowl

By DR. FRANK CRANE

They advertise their performances as "Symphonies Under the Stars."

It is a well-sounding slogan and appeals to not only music lovers but lovers of outdoors. To sit and hear the highest type of music in the most comfortable and attractive of surroundings is indeed a privilege.

The Hollywood Bowl is perhaps one of the unique institutions of the world. It is situated in a natural amphitheater, the huge bowl surrounded on all sides by hills, making a natural slope for the seating of the audience.

When I attended there the other night I was one of thirty thousand people, and we were not listening to anything funny or diverting, only listening to the highest type of classical music admirably performed and conducted by the famous Wagnerian conductor, Hertz.

Hertz is a peculiar-looking man with wobbly legs over which he has insufficient control, a huge torso and he is whiskered and bald-headed. But he knows how to wield the baton and extract marvelous harmonies from his orchestra.

An orchestra is probably the greatest symbol of co-operation and co-ordination known. If people could only get together in politics and in business and move as concertedly and as considerately as they do in an orchestra, what a world of peace and good-will as well as of accomplishment this would be!

When Wagner was asked what he liked best about the violin he replied, "Forty of them."

To watch 40 violinists playing in concert is almost as interesting as to hear them, their movements are so rhythmic and harmonious.

The lover of classical music depends upon hearing it often and creating a taste for it. To produce this music, therefore, under alluring and favorable surroundings is a most useful gesture of art lovers, and few sights more inspiring or attractive could be imagined than to listen to classical music in the marvelous surroundings of the Hollywood Bowl, with the crescent moon up over the hill tops and a salubrious breeze wafting away the stuffy breaths of the multitude.

Most musical entertainments suffer from close rooms, but the exercises in the Hollywood Bowl offer the surroundings of outdoors and a spectacle of unrivaled beauty along with the music.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

"London Bridge"

"LONDON BRIDGE!" They play it still, just as in the by-gone days! Yesterday cries and shrill reached me through the city maze. "London Bridge is falling down!" How it swept the years away, that old song of London town, by young voices, shrill and gay! Laughter, innocent and sweet, welled like music on the air, floating down the busy street, flinging youth's glad challenge there. "London Bridge!" the old song brings memories back in happy throng, joy returns on hasting wings, though the years between are long. "London Bridge is falling down!" How the ranks of care retreat from the noisy, grimy town at the sound of children's feet! Comes the knowledge as they sing life's old sweetness still survives while such happiness can spring from the blooms of children's lives.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

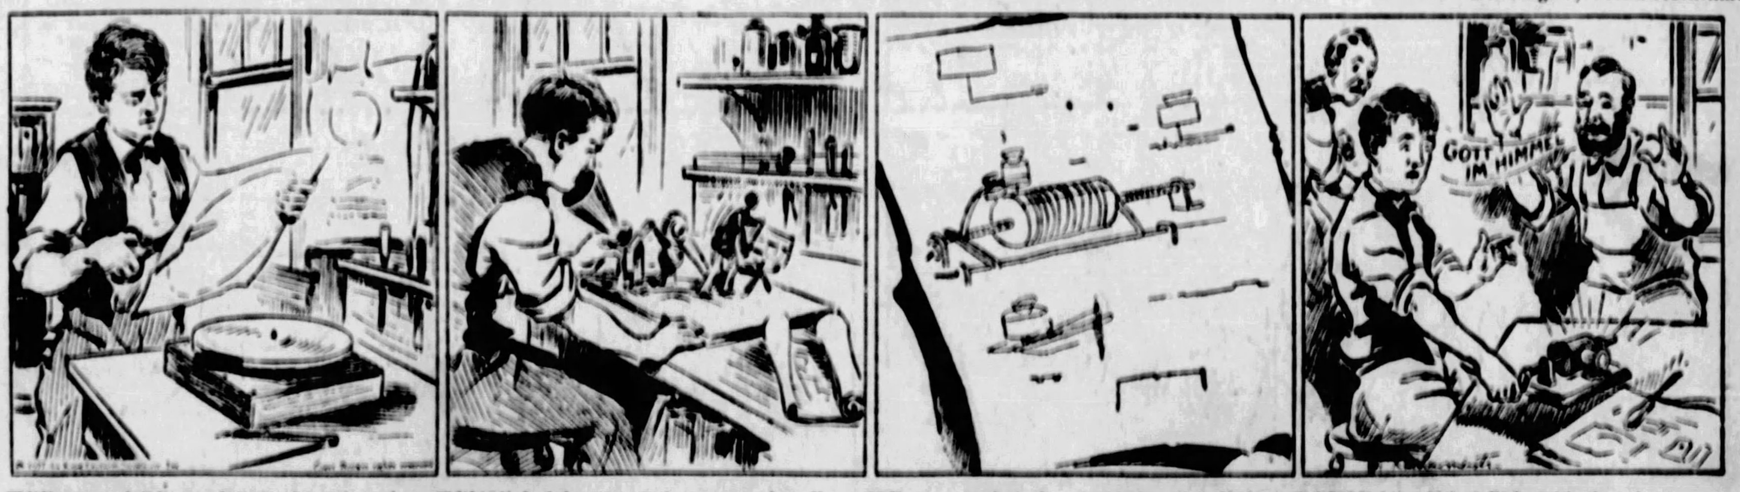
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



THE germ of Edison's favorite invention, the phonograph, he found in experimenting on a device for automatically recording telegraph messages. A disc of paper was laid on a revolving platen exactly the same as the disc phonograph of today. Signals were embossed on the paper and repeated at great speed.

EDISON had known of the power of a diaphragm to take up sound vibrations. In experimenting with the telephone he had made a toy in which a ratchet and pawl were connected to a diaphragm. When he spoke loudly into the funnel a pulley on the ratchet would automatically cause a little man to saw wood.

HE now reached the conclusion that if he could record the movements of the diaphragm properly he could succeed in recording and producing the human voice. He changed the design to the cylinder form, made the sketch reproduced above and gave it to a workman, who thought the entire idea absurd.

EDISON himself had little faith that the first model would work, merely hoping for a bit of encouragement for the future. When it reproduced "Mary Had a Little Lamb" perfectly he was completely taken aback. John Kruesi, who made the model, shouted, "Mein Gott im Himmel!"
